DOCTORS ARE NAMED TO ACT IN WAR CASES

Dr. Max Baker of Newmarket, Dr. George McGregor of Durham and Dr. Louis C. Theobald of Exeter have been named as chairmen of emergency medical service for their communities, it was announced this week by Dr. Charles H. Parsons of Concord, chairman of the division of emergency medical service of the State Defense Council's advisory committee on public safety.

Approximately 2500 doctors, nurses and members of first aid groups were chosen for duty under the local defense councils in 113 New Hampshire cities and towns.

Doctors head 98 of the local groups; while nurses are in charge of the other 15, in places where doctors are not available. An additional 155 physicians have been reported to date as enrolled to head emergency medical squads. Reports from the local committees are incomplete, and it is estimated the total of doctors in the local emergency medical organizations, either as chief of the service or head of an emergency squad, is 300.

The groups are to be assisted by local units of the Red Cross motor corps, the members of which are not included in the above figures.

Centers designated for emergency medical treatment include 107 casualty stations and 175 first aid posts. Equipment and supplies are in mobile units.

RED CROSS TO REORGANIZE IN NEWMARKET

Reorganization of the Newmarket Red Cross chapter of the American Red Cross is expected tonight at 7.30 o'clock at a meeting in the Newmarket town hall.

For the past two years the Newmarket unit of the organization has been inactive and local Red Cross work has been carried on under the supervision of the Exeter chapter.

At tonight's meeting, officers will be elected and other business of the new organization will be transacted.

Fred Philbrick was chairman of the Newmarket chapter during its last period of activity, and it is expected that he will be instrumental in the reorganization.

Soldiers' Photos Appear Next Week

A short week, due to the Fast Day observance, makes it impossible to publish two more photos of Newmarket men who was serving in the armed forces.

The pictures will appear in next week's issue.

Mrs. Robert Mitchell has been visiting her daughter in Buffalo. Alma Harvey was absent from school for several days recently, due to illness.

PRIESTS AID AS LARGE CLASSES ARE CONFIRMED

The Rev. J. Desmond O'Connor of St. Mary's Church, Newmarket, assisted the Most Rev. John B. Peterson, D. D., Bishop of Manchester, in confirming a class of 222, including 98 girls, 93 boys, 22 adults and nine soldiers from Camp Langdon, at the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Portsmouth, Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. J. J. McCarthy of St. Michael's, Exeter, also participated in the ceremony.

Fr. O'Connor and the Rev. Hector Benoit, pastor of St. Mary's Church, Newmarket, also assisted Bishop Peterson when about 125 boys and girls were confirmed at St. Joseph's Church in Epping, Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. J. Ernest Vaccarest, pastor of St. Joseph's, preached the sermon, while Ensign David McQuaid of the Portsmouth Navy Yard and his mother, Mrs. Elias McQuaid of Candia, sponsored the class.

Fr. McCarthy of Exeter and the Rev. John McSweeney and the Rev. John Hansberry, both of Westville, also took part in the confirmation.

Canteen Class Serves Lunch

Sandwiches and coffee were served to 20 members of the Rev. J. Desmond O'Connor's first aid class by the canteen class at Newmarket high school one night last week. This was the first group to be served by the class.

Mrs. Meta Branch purchased the groceries and prepared the menu. The chairman of the preparation committee was Mrs. Anna Wajda, while Mrs. Ione Kent headed the serving committee and Mrs. Emily Crook, the housekeeping committee.

NEWMARKET GIRL'S MATE IN SUB HUNT

Word has been received from the former Virginia Ferguson of Newmarket, now residing in Baltimore, that her husband, Harold Thurston, a second-mate on a Merchant Marine ship, recently participated in a submarine hunt after enemy craft had sunk a vessel operating at sea, close to Mr. Thurston's ship.

Apparently the crew of the other ship had little chance to escape as the boat was blown in half and sank rapidly. Second Mate Thurston reported. Following the sinking, a three-hour hunt was made for the submarine.

Mrs. Thurston, a graduate of Newmarket high school and formerly a member of the office staff at the Rockingham Shoe Co., recently moved to Baltimore to be near her husband when he is not engaged in his dangerous sea duty.

Write A Letter To This Soldier

The Newmarket News has received an interesting letter from Pfc. Al Puchlopek, a Newmarket, boy, who is serving in the United States Army in Kentucky.

Space does not permit publication of the letter until next week, but the editor wants to hurry in giving the soldier's friends this footnote to his letter:

"In case you ever run into anyone who would like to write to a soldier, please give them this address. I promise to answer all letters.

"Pfc. Al Puchlopek, "18th Co., A. F. S., "Fort Knox, Kentucky".

WORKERS ACT EFFICIENTLY IN 'DISASTERS'

Following Newmarket's first mock air raid last Sunday afternoon, in which 325 residents participated, Chief Air Raid Warden Austin J. McCaffrey announced that the test had proven that "all agencies can operate together, that the townspeople will co-operate and that our corps have been efficiently trained."

In spite of the general success of the mock raid, however, Chief Warden McCaffrey indicated he was not entirely satisfied with the reporting of the wardens and that more practice was needed.

The volunteers trained in the Newmarket A.R.P. school were quick to go into action after the fire signal had sounded four blasts, four times, at 2:35 p. m. Wardens' reports started, messengers sped with their messages, many high school students were scattered over the town as "casualties," and, in theory, there were fires, closed roads and extensive damage to churches and schools.

A real emergency test came with a "fire" at the home of Fire Chief J. Fred Lavalle after approaching roads had been closed by "bombs" and the Durham bridge "put out of commission." It was necessary to reroute the fire pumper truck to Packers' Falls and down past the Highland House. Quick time was made on the run.

L. J. Waldron requested a portable unit from the Portsmouth defense plant after the emergency hospital lighting system had been reported disabled, and within 30 minutes a unit was found. Officials said it could be installed in less than an hour in a real bombing attack.

A number of the "disasters" took place in New Village, where efficient workers proved their ability to cope with real emergencies.

The only report of non-cooperation in the test involved a resident who is said to have refused to notify the air raid warden, a neighbor, when the yellow light flashed.

Details of the mock raid were handled by Chief Warden McCaffrey, headmaster of Newmarket High school, and Assistant Warden J. Bartlett Griffin.

The Civilian Defense Council held a meeting after the raid, and discussed plans for purchasing new equipment for each of the local defense agencies, to put them on an efficient basis and bring them up to war-time requirements. About $2,500 is available for this equipment.

Mrs. Irene Walsh was on duty when the yellow light signal came through from Exeter. Virginia Harvey and Claire Rodman took the incoming warden's calls. S. S. Humphries, public safety chairman, reported the recent appointment of William Vandermost, decontamination chairman; Thomas Marshall, rescue; Carl Mallett, bombs; Henry Marlow, demolition. Gone Is France, For A While

A newspaper cartoon published during the week spoke more eloquently than words to describe the new tragedy of France—a complete sell-out to Germany.

Hitler's Vichy stooge, Pierre Laval, now virtual dictator of a once great nation—for centuries past and probably sometime again, a great friend of ours—was leading an aged and blindfolded man, staggering with a cane in his hand, to an open grave. The tombstone read: "Here Lies France." The cartoon was captioned: "New Leadership."

At a glance, here was France's most desperate of many desperate predicaments.

Since the Nazis overran France, she has been in the most unequipped position of any nation in the world, but her plight has been aggravated considerably by her own traitors like Laval.

As for Marshal Petain, who finally yielded to France's most hated politician, it might be best to reserve judgement until authorities familiar with the inside workings of this greatest of wars are able to render rational opinions after the smoke of battle has cleared away. Up to this week, the marshal seemed to be yielding ground as begrudgingly as would be humanly possible for a man so utterly at Hitler's mercy.

He is a very old man, a great hero of the last war—the general who said at Verdun, "They shall not pass." Some critics now contend Marshal Petain actually favored surrender to the Germans at that time, but it still seems preferable to let historians place the true valuation on the famous old soldier, who, at least, has had the respect of the majority of French people. The same cannot be said now, and probably never will be said, of Traitor Laval.

Immediately after grabbing control, Laval heaped the blame for France's woes upon her former ally, Great Britain, and thereby, indirectly at least, sought to crush the French people's loyalty to the United States. Americans remained patient with the knowledge that Laval falls far short of representing the true sentiment of his subjected people.

It would not be possible under the United States' democratic government, either in peace or wartime, to have a scoundrel like Laval double-cross our people.

That's why it's called today—Democracy. And will continue—long after we are permitted to embrace France as a friend again—to be called Democracy.

20,000 Billboards

The Florida "model" Billboard Law, which has been the subject of wide editorial discussion in newspapers, is now being enforced in the state followed the upholding of the law by the Supreme Court. Already it is estimated that over 20,000 billboards have been removed.

The Florida law, in addition to including taxes on billboards, includes restrictions aimed at not letting billboards interfere with safety or with scenic beauty. The chief provisions of the law are:

Requires annual license fees for billboards as follows: $75 for companies operating in one to eight counties; $200 in more than eight counties; also $15 to each county used and an annual permit fee of 2 cents per square-foot per sign. Each sign is required to carry a tag showing the fee has been paid.

Requires all signs to be set back 15 feet from right of way line, 100 feet from churches, schools, parks, etc., and 100 feet from highway or railroad intersections.

No signs are allowed which involve motion or intermittent lights which use words such as "Stop", "Danger", etc., or which are on the inside of a curve or in any manner prevent an unobstructed view of the road.

The legal attack on the law was made by two cigar manufacturers which use thousands of billboards. Following the upholding of the law by the courts, the chairman of the Florida Highway Commission warned sign owners that they must comply with the law by April 1.

For many years newspaper publishers, both weekly and daily, have been attacking unsightly and dangerous billboards and many of them consider the Florida measure to be one which adequately copes with the situation without going to the drastic extreme of banning billboards altogether.

Commenting on the Florida measure, one newspaper editor wrote: "Thus comes nearer to realization the dream of civic-minded Floridians that some day the highways of the state would not serve as avenues of unsightly billboards that hide the natural beauties of the territory traversed. The fight to attain this goal has been a hard and at times bitter one, but it is likely that even the strongest opponents will be glad that the signs have been banned, once they see the beneficial effects."

Similar movements are afoot in other states.

America Can Be Licked:

That's not a slogan thought up by this hysterical alarmist. It's a quote from Adm. William M. Standley, new ambassador to Russia. It makes him an hysterical alarmist, too, which ought to make him a useful man to the gov't. New York had to have the war dumped on the doorstep before it realized the shooting had started. The burning of the Normandie woke the New Yorkers up. They let out the usual yell for scalps, but that was better than no yelling at all. They began to wonder what was going on. Well, what was? Lethargy's another of our crimes, Admiral Standley warns. Have a look at the country away from the coasts and you'll agree. The big idea there is, "The bombers can't reach us." To them, the only part of the U.S.A. at war is the part in danger of invasion. What makes those ostriches think the Nazis or Japs will hug the beaches? They love to travel.

The fault-finders who keep hollering that we don't know enough about Pearl Harbor don't even listen when you mention what the navy did later at the Gilbert and Marshall islands, Macassar strait and Java. That isn't the kind of news they like to monger.

Man About New York:

The United States did not create the pioneer spirit; the pioneer spirit created the United States. That spirit has never failed our people. It was in the gun-pits at Gettysburg, it was in the trenches in France, and it is in the foxholes of the Philippines.

Buy Defense Bonds—

The world picture is black today, but it was black in 1778, when Philadelphia and New York were in the hands of an enemy. It was blacker still when the capital was burned in 1814.

There were only 5,000,000 Americans then. But they taught Europe that though it could invade American territory it could never invade the American spirit; that their artillery could crack an American fort, but never the unity of the Republic. The American people have won every war because they have continued to fight the enemy, not to question their own leadership. Five million Americans stood off the world because deep defeat could not divide them.

The Motor Corps, reports Mrs. Henry S. Clapp, chairwoman, has had a successful test in blackout and map mileage drives. The

That tradition is worth more than all the gold in Fort Knox. Our schools can truthfully teach that there were no hoarders at Valley Forge—and the captain of the U. S. S. Constitution never had to ration Loyalty.

Today the tides of Manila Bay are ebbing and flowing, but not the patriotism of the surrounded Americans. Tokyo hopes they will soon run out of ammunition. Because even Tokyo admits that MacArthur's men will never run out of courage.

The stiletto mob didn't waste a second hopping on the R.A.F. when the Nazy-ships slid through Dover strait. All right, it was a blow that hurt. Hitler got his ships home. But who tied them up for months? The R.A.F. . . . Who fought off the invasion of England, and changed Germany's whole plan of the war? The Huns are on the Russian front today, taking a bloody beating, because the R.A.F. sent them there. But one setback is supposed to rub out all their glories. The toughest outfit of the war, with a record full of glory, is being crucified for losing one skirmish. The idea is not being promoted here, however, that everybody has to shut up. Blunders must not be excused, or inefficiency and plundering concealed. The chief thing is to notice who's doing the loudest yelling, and check back on his record. Lots of the mouthpieces aren't speaking in America's interest. You don't have to be slant-eyed to be a good Jap, or to have an accent to deliver a message from Berlin. Sure, America can be licked. But fevvensakes, don't let's lick ourselves.

This little anecdote about a prime minister and a reporter tells more about the stupid, short-sighted thinking that was almost fatal to democracies than all the intellectual essays ever written. . . Stanley Baldwin told a reporter: "I want it to be said of me that I never sent a single Englishman to die on a foreign battlefield." . . . "But, Prime Minister," he was reminded, "don't you see you are piling up trouble that will kill a million Englishmen in the next war?" . . . "That," said Baldwin calmly, "is a problem for my successor."

EDITOR GIVES HIS REPLY TO 'DISGUSTED'

Dear Disgusted: Last week, I permitted you to have your innings; now I'll step up and take mine. I faithfully recorded your nomination of the Newmarket News as the worst newspaper you had ever seen without even questioning you as to how vast a territory you had ever covered.

One of your charges against us was that the Newmarket News copied news from other newspapers. There may come a time when we may engage in verbal combat on your other accusations, but, for the time being, I'll settle with you for a reply on this one phase alone.

I'll rest my case with the Newmarket jury on this report regarding last week's issue, in which we accomplished the following:

Published the ONLY story about three young men leaving to join the navy, and a farewell reception given for them, at which SOME of the guests were pretty well known Newmarket people.

Published photographs of Charles Humphreys and Elizabeth Sanders, valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, for the coming graduation exercises of Newmarket High School. Did you see the likenesses of these fine-looking seniors in any other paper until they appeared in the NEWS?

Published the most complete story of any newspaper regarding the big three-day carnival sponsored by the finance committee of the Newmarket Civilian Defense Council. So far as we were able, every person who had any part whatsoever in making the carnival a success received mention.

We published chapter 2 of a novel, "Bothers of Jonathan", written by a local woman, Marie Malmquist.

We published a photo of the New Hampshire Wholesale Beverage Association, including Thomas J. Fillion of Newmarket. You couldn't possibly find a picture publicizing this organization in one of our contemporaries, and maybe you think that paper is worth a nickel a copy.

We cooperated with Robert Durgin Post, American Legion, of Newmarket, by publishing for the second time an appeal for service men in the present war to have facts about their service recorded.

We once more antagonized you with a story about the pistol challenges. Maybe somebody ELSE will snicker, as you admitted you did the week before.

Other papers had a story about

Chet Kingsman, former Newmarket High school teacher and coach, receiving his appointment as one of Uncle Sam's flying cadets, but none of them had his letter describing his "very happy mood" concerning his advancement.

We had a yarn about the cat mystery, and a letter from an Exeter letter writer who is as disgusted with the feline situation in Newmarket as you are with the news from your home town newspaper.

Frank Schanda, a well known Newmarket boy, has edged up a notch in the marines for private first-class rating. Remember reading about that until the NEWS brought it to you—or possibly a neighbor who loans you his copy?

Stewart Humphreys was given a birthday party. Bet you never knew he had time to celebrate 'em until we proved it by naming those present.

As usual we had the Polish Club Notes column. Many people have asked why the NEWS carries this feature and doesn't give other Newmarket organizations a similar break. The answer is simple. The to bottom, believes in the NEWS Polish Club membership from top and provides its own news column. Any group in Newmarket could receive the same recognition with the same cooperation.

We also had a story under the caption "Newmarket Man Aids in Building Navy," which told about Chief Commisary Steward George Michaud, a retired naval veteran, returning to service to recruit men for the sea forces—and doing a good job. Had you read much about him lately in the papers that according to you supply me with material to rewrite?

I don't recall any previous report of the Ross-Labranche wedding recorded in last week's NEWS.

How about the tip-off that Pvt. Joseph Grochmal, home on furlough was to wed an Exeter girl last Saturday?

The items about the Eagles' initiation and the defense fund thermometer weren't rewrites either.

Yeah, and how about the news that Police Officer John Valliere had become a grandpappy for the first time? Maybe you think that wasn't NEWS, but John would have to go out and capture a desperado or two to cover himself with more glory, as far as he personally is concerned. Were you ever a grandfather, or did you ever go out and try to conquer a pair of tough guys?

If you won't spend a nickel a week for this kind of stuff—well, keep your nickels, and sooner or later, probably inflation will catch up with you anyway.

When this happens, just come around and say you're very sorry about all the unkind things you've said, and we'll cheer your humbled life with an occasional free copy.

CO-OPERATION OF FARM TOOLS URGED IN USE

Co-operation—both formal and informal—will be one of the American farmer's best weapons to combat the impending severe shortage of farm equipment, Richard H. Varney, Farm Security Administration supervisor for Rockingham and Strafford Counties, said today.

Organization of co-operatives in these counties is expected to rise sharply, Mr. Varney said, as farmers come to realize the economy of sharing both the cost and use of equipment. High-priced equipment has always been a double-edged sword hanging over the small farmer, he pointed out, since owning it is too expensive on a per-acre basis for him to retire the cost, and being without the equipment prevents low-cost production.

Co-op machinery repair shops are being considered here, he said, and also pools of farm repair parts and used equipment. Custom farming—the renting of equipment and services by one farmer to his neighbors—is another development which shows a national increase and the trend is likely to be duplicated here, Mr. Varney said.

Several groups of small farmers in this area have been working together during the past several years in harvesting their ensilage and grain and plans are that much more farm work will be done this year on a group basis. F. S. A. has always encouraged the swapping of farm labor and machinery which has resulted in several small community services being set-up. Last season a group of seven farmers in Derry filled all their silos with one ensilage blower. Each man contributed his own labor, team, tractor, truck or whatever equipment he had that would help do the job.

Registration for sugar will take place in the Durham Village School on May 4th through May 7. Mr. Guy Clark, principal of the school is in charge of registration.

The Advanced class in First-Aid under the direction of Dr. Elizabeth Wilbur is completed. Those passing the final examination are, Mrs. Donald Chapman, Miss Katherine Mone, Mrs. Russell Harmon, Mrs. William Kickline, Mrs. Robert Manton, Mrs. Allen Partridge, and Mrs. Clifton Hildreth. Teachers certificates were awarded to Mrs. Robert Manton and Miss Katherine Mone.

The Music Department of the Durham Woman's Club is to present a Columbia Masterwork recording to the Art Department of the Hamilton Smith Library. This record was used by the music department in their winter project which was the study of South American music. The recording by Alfredo St. Malo, violinist and Nicholas Slonimsky, pianist.

Cat Suspect Is Derry Resident

Several innocent persons came under suspicion after we reported last week that the "katnapping phantom", who narrowly eluded capture with a meowing victim under his coat, was a Newmarket business man "who resides in Durham."

This was an error. The suspect, according to the eye-witness of his escape in a high-powered car, is a Newmarket business man who resides in Derry.

Pigeons Friendly With Garageman

A very friendly flock of pigeons hover around Lapointe's Garage on North Main street, Newmarket. They are well acquainted with Mr. Lapointe, the proprietor, because he sees that they are well fed.

Mr. Lapointe reports that during a storm in the winter, the flock will fly right into the office. He has managed to pick up one or two of them, but, for the most part, they had rather not be handled.

They are not disturbed by his presence, however, when they wing their way into his office.

Mill Wrecking Job Is Speeded

The Newmarket Salvage Corp. is making rapid progress in demolishing what remains of the weave shed formerly owned by the Newmarket Manufacturing Co.

An official of the wrecking firm estimates that the job will be completed in five or six weeks. Ralph Berry has been in charge of operations since February.

The task of razing the weave shed, which was built in 1918-9 at a cost of more than $1,000,000 and was reputed to be the largest single floor mill in the world, was started last September.

Is It The Calm Before The Storm?

Although not even a stray shot came from the training camps of Stewart Humphreys and Syd Langley this week, the pistol championship challengers were reported to be still sticking to their guns.

Many details concerning the forthcoming match between the duelists in Madison Square Garden or the Boston Garden will be revealed for the first time when a great publicity campaign is launched soon.

Photos of the gladiators in action will convince the skeptics that the challengers are sincere in their preparations for the battle.

Ferguson Park Crowd Gloomy As Season Opens

Ferguson Park in Newmarket has officially opened another season with its founder, Charlie Ferguson, rotund superintendent, still in charge.

Buds have appeared on the row of trees that will form huge umbrellas for the bench-warmers during the sunny days ahead.

No matter how sunny, however, the coming summer will have a few depressing factors. War will be the chief topic of chatter, and the fact that the main office of the new Miserable Club, is close by, and downcast faces will always be much in evidence there, will not lend cheer to the bench fraternity.

Another disturbing element is the slowness of many members in catching up with their back dues. If the benches are to be kept in spic and span condition for summer comfort, funds must be forthcoming to meet expenses, Superintendent Ferguson has warned his colleagues.

Rifle Club Has Ladies' Night

The Durham Rifle club held the annual ladies night last night at the shops building. Mr. Norman Houston was the winner for the evening and carried off the first prize which was defense stamps. Mr. and Mrs. Appley were the victors in couple shooting and there were thirteen other prizes given away. All prizes for marksmanship were in some denomination of defense stamps. A wedding cake was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gunn in honor of their fourteenth wedding anniversary. Gifts were awarded to Asst. Chief Raymond of Rochester and Sgt. Casey in appreciation of work done in the rifle club.

CHAPTER 3
Astounding Story

"Very well, sir. Be it as you wish. The time is yours". The minister remained standing. Then came five minutes of an astounding revelation. Words poured from lips—words to enlighten the most avidly intent ears. What they had gone through, a tale never to be forgotten by any one there. Mr. Simms wound up by asking if any one present had been in Andersonville prison. Two of them had. Then he demanded that one of them tell of some of the horrors there.

One came forward. "Since you have heard as much as you already have," he said, "I shall tell of a few happenings in that hell-hole that I had vowed I would not tell to anyone." He told of prisoners being herded, heaped upon the prison grounds, with no attention paid to festering wounds, of misery, filth, stench; and of putrid food (what little they got) and that had it not been for the spring of clear water in the yard none of them could have got out alive. Hearing that, Mr. Simms shouted "You are damned liar!" "What, sir?" came from the man on the platform.

"I said that you are a damned liar," he shouted once more. "Spring of water, you said! God, if there had been! But there wasn't and you know it."

"I know nothing of the kind", the man retorted. "There was a spring of water when I was there. My comrade here was with me. He can tell you." The man with the wounded arm sat down, and the comrade referred to stepped forward.

"Mr. Simms," he said, "I do not know when you were at Andersonville, but we were there, Mr. Jones and I. We were there three weeks after Gettysburg, and it was as much as we could stand. The spring was there."

The stir broke all bounds. The minister, Reverend E. P. Graves, urged those present to leave all discussion till after the repast. It proved a real feast, a long drawn out one, with all sorts of good things to eat. Gideon Simms was placed near the head of the table, with Pap Jones and Zeke, one on each side of him. Baked beans disappeared, so did sandwiches, brown bread, pickles, doughnuts, dakes, and hot tea. There was very little left on the table when the pies were brought. Pap used knife and fork properly; Zeke did not. His fingers were forks, and his teeth did good service as a knife, and no one minded.

After the feasting Mr. Simms was urged to take from his shoulders the long cloak because of the heat in the hall. He seemed very reluctant, and finally said "I would rather not, I can stand the heat." But the perspiration showed on his face, and the cloak would have to come off. "To tell the absolute truth," he said, "if I should take it off I would have very little clothing left on my body. In fact, I wouldn't want to be looked at even with no ladies present. The cloak hides my rags."

One young fellow hastily left the room, and came back shortly with a parcel in his hand. Untying the string, he took out a pair of trousers, and held them out to Mr. Simms.

"I heard what you said, sir. I bought these in Albany this morning. We are of a size, and they will fit you. Put them on, brother." The gift was accepted.

"But see here, young American. Do you expect me to put on a pair of gray trousers so soon after the war?"

"Sure, why not? There is neither North nor South from now on. We are all friends," was the reply, and all joined in. A fully and freely avowed Brotherhood of States, United States of America, in the best sense of the word.

After hearing the plight he was in, the men formed a barricade around Simms. With their backs to him and with the two negroes to help him he was soon "fit to be seen." Someone else had found a clean shirt to go with the trousers, and the man showed to better advantage than before the change. The white-haired negro had on a coat that was too big, but not ragged, and Zeke admired him to his heart's content.

In the meantime, a woman had quietly left the room. In some manner she had come back with a pair of brand-new overalls and a clean shirt just right for Zeke. In the manner of Simms he appeared in new clothes, and Pap kept turning him around he make sure it really was Zeke. The boy stood silent. He looked down at one new sleeve; turned a somersault in the space before the door. Then he looked down the other sleeve, a long look, and went and hid his face inside Pap's coat and burst into tears.

"There, there, 'pose yerself Zeke, 'pose yerself. Pap is here, Zeke; Pap is here."

But Zeke would not be comforted. He sobbed as if his heart would break, and no soothing phrase could stop him.

Pap was all smiles, pleased with his coat. He bowed his thanks and turned again to Zeke. This time the boy was all smiles. He grinned all over, made friends with the children, and looked as if he had no care for the morrow. A feeling new to Zeke.

And the men on the platform gathered with the other men around Simms. The prison theme was forgotten, except once, when Wirtz was mentioned; that brought another outburst from him, "He was a devil. Torturing prisoners was his specialty, and he gloated over their plight while doing that". And to that the soldiers added something under their breath.

In a seat by herself the wife of Hugh Clayton heard what was being said; heard of the horrors of prison existence, and wondered about Hugh. Had he been there, a prisoner? And if he had, what had become of him? While the others were still talking, she quietly left the room.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

By the time spring work begins, a work horse should be getting a pound of hay and a pound of grain for each hundred pounds of its body weight.

Double Birthday Party Is Held

A double birthday party was held in honor of Miss Florence Stevens of Newmarket and Miss Elaine Roberts of Durham, at the apartment of Stewart S. Humphreys, 70 Main street, Newmarket, last Sunday night.

There were two large birthday cakes and a roast pork supper was prepared and served by Mr. Humphreys, whose ability as a chef is well known.

Among those present, besides the host and guests of honor, were Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Roberts and son, Elwood, Jr., of Durham; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Scripture and son, Paul, Jr., Durham; Charles Humphreys, Camil Mongeon, Miss Phyllis Roberts of Durham, Hugh March and Miss Mary March.

Tomatoes, snap beans, carrots, beets, cabbage, lettuce, chard and kale are among the best vegetables for the small garden, as they yield well for the amount of space they occupy and also provide both raw and cooked foods.

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

Every Friday night a bunch of us fellows get together over at Bill Webster's place. We wouldn't miss those weekly get-togethers for anything.

There are seven in the group — Bill Webster, Judge Cunningham, Pete Swanson, Old Doc McGinnis the dentist, and young Doc Mitchell the M.D., the government man Bob Newcomb, and myself.

We don't play cards. We don't sing or carry on.

We just sit quietly and talk — and drink a glass or two of beer.

I guess we discuss — just about everything under the sun — politics, business, family affairs, music, farming, hunting, fishing, and what not.

But mostly we like to chew the fat about life's experience and a man's philosophy in these times.

To sort of help out the conversation, we've found mellow beer particularly relaxing. Every one of us likes the tangy taste of beer . . . and now and then Judge Cunningham insists on ale for everybody.

You mightn't think that just settin' and talkin' would be so much fun. But it is. Particularly when a man begins to get around to the age of reason. Like us.

And it's wonderful how a few glasses of good beer help bring out good talk and good sense when men get together. There's something peaceful and friendly and human about beer that brings out the best in a man.

They call beer the "beverage of moderation." That "moderation" idea is good philosophy . . . maybe that's why good beer and good fellowship go together so well.

Seems to me there ought to be more of this quiet talk over a glass of beer. It sure straightens out a man in his thinking.

Anyhow, men ought to get together and be friends. That's the way we were made. Why not try it more often — all of you?

Joe Marsh

The Letter Box

Guy H. Langley, Editor,
Newmarket News
Dear Sir:

I am taking the liberty of writing you in regard to the good paper you are publishing.

I have had heart trouble for six years, so I do not go out much. I have been down street once in two years. I started taking the News when Mr. Burbank gave out the flags and at that time there was not much local news. I am not a kicker, but we are not all made for the same work, and since you have taken over as editor and manager, you have made the News a better paper in all ways.

No matter which way you turn, an editor gets hell for what he puts in the paper. What is the paper for in a country town, if you cannot put in advertisements, outside news and local gossip? That is what the ladies like, but you will always have a few soreheads who only grumble and kick. But I am glad to see you can stand back of what you print in your paper. Good for you!

The Boston Globe has been in my family for 50 years and the New Hampshire Sentinel, a Keene paper, for 60 years, and I shall also have the Newmarket News as long as I live.

I am sending you a clipping from my Keene paper. Mr. Nadig calls himself "The Cheshire Cat" and puts in all kinds of wisecracks weekly, and he does not get the seat of his pants kicked for it. The people like it.

If we could only see ourselves with other people's eyes, it would be, to one and all, a very great surprise.

Just keep on with your good work with the local paper, the Newmarket News.

Yours, respectfully,
A FRIEND

(This letter was signed, but writer's name is withheld by request.)

Westville, N. H.

To the Editor:
I have read with much interest the letters regarding the disappearance of pet cats. I am an old lady, have always had a cat for a pet, and still have one, but cats can be a real nuisance to neighbors, especially in crowded areas and in two and three-family tenements.

In the past, I have had all my beautiful flower gardens ruined by hordes of these-so-called pet cats belonging to neighbors. I understand there is no law governing the killing of a pest cat, and action can be taken when they constitute a nuisance.

Also, did the people who wrote those letters ever live in an apartment, where some careless people keep cats shut up in the cellar all year round? I have, and as much as I love cats, I wouldn't do it.

I agree wholeheartedly with the editor about keeping your own cat on your own premises. There is a big difference between cruelty and common sense, as some people think of no one but themselves and cats.

We enjoy your paper very much.

Garden Clubs
Founder Feted

James Mac Farland one of the founders of New Hampshire Garden clubs was given a birthday party at the last Garden Club meeting. He was presented with a book on orchids. Mr. MacFarland is a past master of the Durham Garden Club and has been an active member from its beginning. The Garden Club is contributing to the resurfacing of the lawn around the community church.

It May Happen—Here

Because of a discrepancy of two minutes in the time recorded by two watches 1500 soldiers met death from their own artillery. The occasion was the counter offensive of the Allies in the first World War. The year was 1917. The place was along the Aisne near Chemin De Dames. How it happened follows:

The infantry was to go into action at a given minute and, to make their attack more likely to succeed, the artillery was to lay down a barrage to soften up the objective. According to the time indicated by the watch in the hand of the artillery officer the barrage should start. And it did. But according to the time in the hand of the infantry officer it should not begin for two more minutes. In that two-minute period the infantry officer was to have moved his men into a predetermined position. Before this all-important manouever could be accomplished the artillery barrage cut loose and before it had ceased the entire infantry contingent was wiped out from its own artillery.

The writer was reminded of this long-forgotten incident when recently he was on duty at a Defense center. It was his duty to relay any warning that might come to him from some other center which had picked up a warning of an impending air raid. The writer, who had never been on duty before, reported during the early hours of the morning. As he entered the Defense Center he found the man on duty fast asleep. He awakened the man and said that he had come to relieve him. The writer asked for instructions because he had had none. The man who had been asleep said that there was nothing much to do—"nothing ever happens"—"just sign your name in the book"—and off went the man.

The writer looked about him. There, on the right was a phone—an old fashioned stand up type with a red ribbon tied round it. Immediately before him was a chest type mouth piece and a clamp type ear piece. To the right, in the foreground was a switch board and in the background was a French phone. Instructions lay about on tables along with magazines, Sunday Pictorials, and circulars. The writer began reading the instructions but something happened: A BELL SOUNDED!

For a moment the writer, on whom the safety of a city depended (had there been a raid), wondered what to do. Which of the three phones to answer! How to work the switch board! What to say—to do! (Nothing ever happens!) Again the bell rang. The writer picked up a receiver. His heart clogged his throat in excitement. He cleared his throat and said, "Hello"

From the ear phone came a voice of authority. It said, "Hello WHAT?"

The writer said, "Just hello."
The voice in the ear phone said "Oh h.....!"

The writer was aware that all was not well. He was confused. Then the voice in the receiver said, "State your center". The writer did so. The other voice said "(Name of center) WHAT?" The writer replied "Name of center—New Hampshire". The voice in the ear phone became severe. It demanded that we cut out our fooling and follow instructions.

"But I haven't read the instructions yet," we pleaded.

"HAVEN'T READ THE INSTRUCTIONS—Good God—There's a war going on—Get this straight!"

Then we got it straight. The final bit of information was to be my name. I didn't know about that but the voice in the earphone said, "What's your name?"

I thought that was nice of the voice—thought he was relenting from his severity and so I replied, "My name is; what's yours?"

I thought he wanted to be friendly. Instead he blew up and to himself thundered, Line dead to..... (name of another center); line dead to..... (name of another center); and a blankety blank fool over in..... (name of my center). This is a fine air raid system." Just suppose it had been the real thing and that for a discrepancy of two minutes caused by the improper coordination 1500 American women and children had been (OH-GOD'NO!).

The OBSERVER prints this story, not because the incident took place in Rochester, (IT DID NOT) but because it reveals a basic weakness in volunteer defense protection in some areas. The answer is more and more preparation and an attitude that "Something may happen—and it may happen HERE!"

After draining the auto or tractor radiator of anti-freeze, flush it with clean water before refilling.

Johnny . . .

Johnny's teacher caught him talking to another boy in class and made him stay after school. "Johnny," she said, what were you talking about?" Johnny replied, "We was arguing about bread — Pete said his was better than mine and I said it couldn't be because mine was Pan Dandy."

The teacher merely smiled and said, "You're excused— You said a mouthful!"

Private Grochmal Weds In Exeter

A number of Newmarket friends attended the wedding of Pvt. Joseph Grochmal, son of Mrs. Rose Grochmal of Newmarket, and Miss Josephine Agnes Gorski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gorski of McKinley street, Exeter, in St. Michael's Church, Exeter, last Saturday.

Following the ceremony, at which the Rev. Daniel Cotter celebrated the nuptial mass, there was a reception at the bride's home. Earlier in the week, a surprise miscellaneous shower had been held for the bride in the Exeter Polish Hall, with about 100 guests present.

At the wedding, Miss Valerie Gorski, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Stanley Grochmal, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Razor Wielder Turns To Axe

Many a bead of sweat is dripping from the brow of a prominent Newmarket barber, who has taken up wood-chopping in his leisure moments.

Alarmed at the prospect of an oil shortage next winter, the tonsorial wizard has decided to wield the axe when not manipulating scissors and razors. Customers are hoping he doesn't get his implements mixed up.

'Miserables' Keep Their Eyes On Elmer, Fearing His Annual Disappearing Act

The eyes of all members of the Newmarket Miserable Club are being kept on Elmer, one of the charter members, who, it is feared, may succumb to spring fever and disappear.

Some of his colleagues point out that about this time of the year, wanderlust seizes Elmer, and—like the Arab—he folds his tent and steals silently into the night.

They expect any morning now, fellow miserables will be shouting: "Where's Elmer?"

The annual spring salad supper was served last night at the Community church by the Community Guild.

Arthur Pease of Exeter street, an employe of the Portsmouth Navy Yard, has been ill.

Misses Irene and Marjorie Fielders of Franklin were visiting their father, Ernest Fielders, this week.

There's still a lot of organization work ahead for the club members and Elmer's continued assistance is needed. They hope Elmer may shake off a spring fever attack if it comes, and remain in town to see his sad-faced brethren through their task of complete organization.

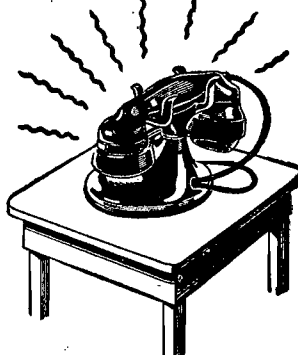

If Elmer insists, however, upon taking his mysterious annual pilgrimage, fellow club members want to talk to him before he departs and advise him to form a branch of the Miserable Club wherever he may wind up.

As usual, in the Fall, Elmer's boss will trek to his hideout and take him in tow, back to Newmarket.

So, if you hear the Newmarket miserables moaning, "Where's Elmer?" it will be a tip-off that Elmer is on the loose again.

SAVE telephone service for WAR needs

Please answer your telephone as promptly as possible.

Five or six seconds delay in answering your telephone may not seem important. . . Ordinarily it wouldn't matter too much. Now it does. New England has urgent war work to do. Your Telephone Company is already handling nearly seven million calls a day . . . more all the time. A few seconds delay in answering a telephone—multiplied thousands of times—ties up telephone apparatus and telephone people for hours and hours every day. Apparatus cannot be easily added because even the raw materials . . . copper, lead, zinc, aluminum, etc. . . are scarce. Present telephone equipment must be stretched as far as possible.
