WILD GUN SHOTS TO BE HALTED

RECKLESS ACTS AROUSE POLICE IN NEWMARKET

Numerous instances of reckless shooting with rifles in compact areas in Newmarket have led the Board of Selectmen and the police department to take action to halt the practice, which has recently resulted in complaints that several persons narrowly escaped injury from bullets.

Many violations of a state law which forbids such shooting in populated areas have occurred around New Village, Riverside cemetery and the dump, also located in that vicinity according to Newmarket police.

Authorities point out that a town can enforce regulations so rigid that even firecrackers and small cannon cannot be set off in the compact sections. At present, however, the police are chiefly

A well known Newmarket boy has arrived with U. S. Army fliers in a very distant land, which, to the editor's knowledge, has not figured largely in the world news up to now.

When it is ascertained that establishment of an American air base at this particular point is common knowledge, the Newmarket News will publish further details of the Newmarket boy's service for Uncle Sam.

4-H Club Will Collect Metal

The Happy Workers' 4-H Club of Boys will collect scrap iron for defense production in Newmarket for the next few weeks. Besides collecting the metal in pushcarts, the youngsters will construct a pen in front of the Town Hall, where residents can deposit the much needed material.

Sheriff Ralph Berry, civilian defense salvage chairman, is supervising the work, assisted by the club patrol leaders, Edmund P. Branch, Clifton J. Thompson and Duane C. Ayers.

Past Sachems Are Feted At Banquet

Past Great Sachems Lyman E. Colishaw and Otis H.H. Cammett, 25 year members of the Order of Past Great Sachems, were recently given a banquet by Wehananowit Tribe of Red Men in Exeter.

The following officers were inducted to fill vacancies caused by men on defense work being unable to continue their duties: Folger Wentworth, senior sagamore; Joseph Chatigny, Jr., junior sagamore; and John Lary, collector of wampum.

CHAPTER 8 Sonny

After the funeral Sonny began his round of duties in the Barton home. He proved to be quiet, reliable and prompt in his work. He cheerfully assumed home and garden work, and seemed content at his work. Mrs. Barton found an apt pupil, elarning to do whatever was to be done, and doing it right. He gave no inkling of what he could do, but went at any task willingly and even gladly. He made frequent trips to the little mound on the hill side where lay buried his father and the little daughter recently lost to the Bartons. And he continued his search for the money hidden somewhere in or near the cabin.

The nasturtiums, long since withered, had twined about the old stump outside the window, and when in bloom had concealed a hollow on the side nearest the cabin. He had forgotten the place and least of all thought of it as the hiding place for his father's money. He had searched every nook and cranny inside and outside of the cabin, but in vain. There was absolutely nothing to be found.

One day in late November, after the first snow had fallen, he started once more for the woods. It was to be his last trip. It was no use; he had found no sign of his father's papers nor his money. He had to give up the search for the time being, and his decision had been made. Moody and out of sorts, he happened to glance in the direction of the window; he saw a woodchuck sitting on the stump where the thin layer of snow had melted. Then he saw him disappear inside the stump. He went inside and sat on the edge of the bed to watch for the animal to come out. While he watched he saw something shiny inside the hollow, opened the pane of glass outward from the sill, and caught sight of a bright object—a tin can, tied about by his own fishline, and held in place by the hook. Just then the woodchuck stuck his head above the hollow, ducked back when he saw Sonny watching. Soon the can was in Sonny's hand. It took some time to unwind the line, but it did not take long to open the can. There was the hidden treasure, and the missing papers.

Hurriedly he closed the window, looked about to see that all was right and that nothing had been disturbed, and went down the path faster than he ever had before. Mr. and Mrs. Barton were talking in the kitchen when he got home. They heard him coming and wondered at his quick step. He entered the room, and they guessed what had happened.

Straight over to Mr. Barton the boy strode, put the tin can into his hands and exclaimed, "Here it is. Just open the can and see for yourself. Father's papers and the money."

Slowly, and with trembling hands, the man opened the can. "Now I can pay back what you have spent on us. But not in a hundred years can I repay you for all your kindness. I want you to count the money with me. Father's papers are inside this envelope but it is sealed. And it says for me not to open it until my eighteenth birthday, and that is a long way off." Trembling with eagerness, he poured the money into Mrs. Barton's lap.

There was a roll of bills, a doubled up and sealed envelope, and a number of small bills and silver coins. The funeral bills were paid, and the rest of the money put into the safe. The clothes that had been bought for Sonny were paid for also, and Sonny felt happier than he had since his father died.

On one of the last days of August, a middle-aged farmer was driving his horse along the road on the farther side of the clearing wherein stood the cabin. He had been in Albany, and on his way home he stopped near a big rock on the sunny side of the road. He had often done errands for the father, who, with his son, had come to occupy the cabin way up in the clearing. The big wash boiler had been empty when he stopped at the rock in early morning; he always made sure that the slip of paper with the money for the purchase of what was ordered, was there. Sometimes the slip would be left during day, and then he would do the errand the next trip to the city. Anyway, there was no message there now.

He climbed back to his seat, clucked to his horse, and started singing, "Yankee Doodle," that is, the tune, but not the words. The words were of his own improvising, and he sang to his horse only. There was no one else within ear-shot, and he seemed to enjoy himself while improvising. At the top of his voice, he sang: "Yankee doodle went to town a-riding on a oncy. He thought to buy his wife a gown and she thought he was pony. He thought to buy his wife that can't be beat." Ned was the horse.

Early in May of the same year he had seen a man and a boy walking along the road where he was driving. They were evidently strangers, and he had given them a lift. The two had much baggage to carry, and were glad of the offer, gratefully expressed their thanks, and had told him some of their plans.

Their bags were heavy and they had traveled far. The man was in poor health and had come to the dense forest to stay for the summer, provided a suitable place could be found, not too near other people. They would want rest and quiet, and could do without many so-called comforts. A camp in the woods was what they hoped to find, and did he know of such a place?

He did. A couple of miles to the right and in the very midst of the forest there was an abandoned lumber camp. No one came there, now, since the war was over. Escaped slaves used to stay there overnight when on their way to Canada. But of a certainty no one had been there lately. Would that do?

Then he had told them how to get there. An overgrown path up the steep hillside would take them right to the camp. As for any errands they would want done, he could do them if they wanted him to. He went to Albany sometimes twice or thrice weekly, and he would place an old wash boiler under the big rock at the end of the path. Their list of articles wanted could be left for him, with the money, and he would leave them in the boiler for them to come for. His prices had been faithfully kept, but lately there had been no order left, not for a week at least, and Farmer Giles wondered what had become of them.

EXETER ALUMNI EVENTS SLATED FOR TOMORROW

The second annual field day and third annual banquet of the Exeter High School Alumni Association will be held tomorrow.

The program will include two baseball games, one between the Old Timers' and Junior High school teams and the other between Exeter High and Newmarket High. Proceeds will be contributed toward the playground project sponsored by the Exeter Lions Club.

The banquet will be held at 7:15 at the Harris House on Elliot St., and the program will consist of talks by prominent alumni.

John Adams is president of the Alumni association, and will be the general chairman of the occasion, and the assistants will be Dean J. Thorp, John DeMerit, Daniel Herlihy, Harry Thurston, Folger Wentworth, Walter O. Pennell and Richard Brewitt, all of whom will arrange for the banquet, and the Alumni Day committee is Jerome "Jack" Carbonneau, Albert McReel, Harold E. Carbonneau, Cornelius Manix, Louis Gilmore, Fred A. Moore and Dean J. Thorpe.

The Newmarket News

Dear Sir:

After reading the article in the Newmarket News last week concerning the banning of fireworks in the State of New Hampshire this Fourth of July, I, as one of the youths who take such pleasure in igniting fireworks on this day, would like to express my opinion on the subject.

I must admit that shooting off firecrackers is a great pleasure to me, but I realize that the powder could be put to better use in the guns of our armed forces. Why not give the Axis some fireworks instead? This could very easily be done by investing the money that would ordinarily be used to purchase fireworks into war savings bonds and stamps.

Hoping this letter will do some good,

I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
ARISTOTLE BOURAS

Red Men Elevate Willey To Sachem

At a recent meeting of the Red Men in Newmarket, Past Great Sachem Ernest Trottier raised George Willey to the office of sachem, the latter having been ill in Exeter Hospital when the other chiefs were elevated a month ago.

Also raised at the same time were the following appointed officers: Adelard Rousseau, first sannah; Ernest Trottier, second sannah; Armand LePage, guard of the forest; Joseph Ladderbush, guard of the wigwam.

The lodge accepted an invitation from Robert G. Durgin Post, American Legion, to participate in the Memorial Day parade.

Newmarket P. O. May Be Advanced

The Newmarket postoffice is expected to be advanced to second-class rating July 1, as the result of doing a volume of business required for the change.

Postmaster Albert Priest has received no official word to this effect, but second-class forms have been forwarded to him and a postal inspector has checked the records.

If the Newmarket postoffice is granted the new rating, clerical employes' wages will be increased and it will be possible to add a part-time worker.

Newfields House And Barn Burns

A house and barn owned by Warren Carney of Watertown, Mass., about five miles from the village of Newfields, were destroyed by a fire of unknown origin Wednesday afternoon. Despite the efficiency of the Newfields, Newmarket and Exeter fire departments, the flames, fanned by a strong wind, quickly levelled the buildings and spread into nearby woodlands.

At one time, the Grange Hall was threatened by the blaze.

A fella registered for the THIRD draft the other day. He told his age, height, weight and a lot of other personal information. Then they asked him who besides his wife would know where to locate him.

The fella thought a moment and then, with a significant smile said, "Ask the Pan Dandy man: HE SEES ME EVERY DAY!"

DURHAM WAR NURSE MISSING IN FAR EAST

Lieut. Letha McHale of Durham and Chester, a member of the Reserve Nurses' Corps, is "missing in action" in the Far East, according to an announcement made by the War Department in Washington.

It had previously been believed that Lieutenant McHale, like her close friend, Miss Rita Palmer of Hampton, also a nurse, had reached Australia safely. She was last reported on Bataan Peninsula and probably retreated from Bataan to the fortified island of Corregidor.

Lieutenant McHale, 35 years old, became an army nurse last September at Camp Edwards, Mass., and with five other nurses, including Miss Palmer, was sent to the West Coast and then to the Philippines. These nurses were serving in Manila until compelled to withdraw to Bataan Peninsula, where Miss Palmer was wounded in the bombing of a hospital.

In an effort to secure more details, a brother, Lawrence F. McHale of Brooklyn, N. Y., has called to a friend of Lieutenant McHale in Australia.

The nurse was born in Stoughton, Mass., and lived in Durham before going to Chester to reside with Mrs. Bertha McCully. She attended the University of New Hampshire for two years and received her nursing training at Hale Hospital in Haverhill, Mass. Prior to beginning army service, she was head of the children's ward at New Hampshire Hospital in Concord.

OPPOSE MILK DELIVERY CUT IN NEWMARKET

At a meeting of the raw milk producers of Area No. 7 in the Newmarket Town Hall last Sunday afternoon, F. Albert Sewall, one of the dealers and secretary of the Newmarket Board of Selectmen, was named as the group's representative to attend a hearing in Concord last Wednesday to explain his colleagues' attitude on wartime distribution problems.

Mr. Sewall reported at the hearing, which was conducted in Representatives' Hall in the State House, that the milk producers in Newmarket and vicinity had decided unanimously at their meeting that curtailment of daily deliveries was inadvisable. He stated that the dealers saw no need for less frequent deliveries and believed any curtailment would do more harm than good.

Caillixte Baillargeon, president of the local producers' group, presided at the Newmarket meeting, and besides Messrs. Baillargeon and Sewall, these other dealers at-

Meras Says Profits Should Go Into Bonds

Although not mentioning the heavy taxes that are being imposed upon business and industry to help fill the Federal coffers, Ralph E. Meras, Exeter businessman and prohibition leader, suggests that politicians, manufacturers, loan companies and big insurance firms be forced to hand over some of their "billions in profits" for the issue of war bonds.

In his latest communication to this newspaper, Mr. Meras also condemns the operation of horse and dog racing tracks during the war.

His letter follows:
Mr. Guy Langley,
Editor, The Newmarket News,
Newmarket, N. H.
Dear Mr. Langley:

Your good sportsmanship in publishing my answer to your criticism in regard to tolerance of liquor, especially in war-time, just as it was written, is appreciated. Occasionally an editor has published my replies to them with changes or omissions, which I consider entirely out of order unless there is something in them unfit for publication. However, I still think you have the wrong view of tended: Peter Hamel, Tony Biskup, Mr. Zych, Dan Brady and Alphonse Tourigny. John Gonet and Michael Ross did not attend the session, but their views had previously been ascertained, and, of course, coincided with those of the other dealers.

Despite the Newmarket group's sentiment, however, the bulk of testimony given at the Concord hearing appeared to advocate a state-wide plan for deliveries every other day, no special delivery except to hospitals and military bases, no more than one delivery in any one day to any customer, and all deliveries to be made during daylight hours.

One leading opponent of curtailment, however, was Dr. Howard A. Streeter, Manchester health official, who declared that health of infants and the welfare of the infant should be preference over conservation of tires and gasoline.

the situation.

First, almost no one is buying bonds to the limit of his ability. Our legislators, our manufacturers, our loan companies, our big insurance men, are, in many cases, making two or three hundred and even one thousand percent profit. The Government is not saying to them, "You have taken billions from the people wrongfully—now that it is needed so badly, hand over to us 50 or 75 percent of it and you will still have more than you are entitled to." It has not said to the loan companies, "You must reduce your rates of 16-20-36 percent to not over 10 to 12 percent so people can have the difference for bonds or stamps, or pressing personal needs. It has not even said you must buy bonds with the difference between a reasonable profit and what you receive."

It does not say to the brewers and distillers, "Stop making booze to sell at exorbitant prices which at the same time reduces the efficiency of our soldiers, sailors, our mechanics and munitions workers, and the profits of which enable them to spend billions in advertising which has practically bought the publishers, the radio and movie producers, body and soul."

Our President and our Governors know all these things and they know they are all wrong, just as you and I do, but they are not big enough to cut loose from their vicious, entangling alliances and say, "I will tell the people the truth and try to stop all this that is so greatly obstructing our progress and happiness."

I understand horse and dog racing and gambling are to be allowed to continue, tempting people to waste time, money, gas and rubber. Babies will go without milk and old folks without sugar while the brewers use sugar, grain and rye even by the thousands of tons. Even new race-tracks are to constructed, using other thousands of tons of precious steel, etc., etc.

I say this, and I am sure of it, that the people distrust a government that is so inconsistent and unjust. This must and does make them reluctant to buy bonds for such objects to handle.

If honest efforts were being made to eliminate this great waste and destruction, this distrust and reluctance to give would be largely overcome. This is why you and every thoughtful, patriotic citizen should join me in efforts to get action on these things. Write your President, your Governor, Senators and Congressmen to support any bill now before Congress or that may be introduced, that seeks to eliminate any of these evils. Bill No. 860 has been pending; but held up by great selfish interests, for about a year now.

Yours sincerely,
RALPH E. MERAS,
Exeter, N. H., May 26, 1942.

To the Editor:
Mr. Meras is right when he says if people would leave off drinking rum and beer they could buy twice as many bonds.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would like

NEWMARKET MAN TUTOR AT AIR BASE

Although now serving Uncle Sam, George Proctor, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Proctor, of 20 Chapel street, Newmarket, still keeps in touch with events in the sport world, according to letters sent by him from the U. S. Naval Air Station at Jacksonville, Fla.

George's interest in athletics comes from experience, too, as he was manager of the Newmarket baseball team which had a number of interesting games, including a series with the Dover K. of C., in the summer of 1940, and also was a serious contender in Dover's 1940 city tennis championship tournament.

In one letter, he told of going to the Jacksonville base on Oct. 29 and graduating from an aviation mechanics' school on Feb. 28. At the time he wrote, he was serving there as an instructor.

He had the naval training station had a baseball team which won 17 out of 19 games during the regular season. Joe Walsh, former Boston Braves pitcher, is playing short stop and the pitcher is a Bridgeport, Conn., player named Belardenelli, who was scheduled to join the Washington Senators this year.

There was also a training station football team, with Eddie Mahan, formerly of Harvard, as head coach, and such boxing material as Steve Belloise and George Abrams.

Proctor reported that he reached the finals in the station's tennis meet, but was defeated in the title match, 6-4, 7-5. He expected within a short time to receive third-class machinist mate's rating corresponding with a sergeant's rank in the army.

He was also expecting a leave in the near future and planned to visit relatives and friends in this section.

Police To Halt Wild Gun Shots

concerned with the reckless rifle shooting which has been going on lately and have issued a stern warning that weapons will be confiscated from minors or unlicensed adults caught using firearms of any description within the so-called compact areas.

Police Officer John Valliere notified the Board of Selectmen after receiving four complaints about reckless shooting within a single week.

It is understood that Ernest A. Trotter, member of a Newmarket undertaking firm, has discovered that many flower pots and urns have been smashed by bullets and some of the tombstones have been pitted by bullets at Riverside Cemetery. This is indeed serious business. It is believed that some of the shots came from the direction of New Village, while it is possible that others were fired into the water from boats on the Lamprey River, in the rear of the cemetery, and skimmed along the water, finally rebounding onto the grounds.

Police received one report of a gunplay boy who was firing at a youngster's heels just for the fun of making him run, near the dump in that section.

While some of the offenses probably were committed by adults, police believe that boys with 22-calibre rifles were responsible in the majority of cases.

Officer Valliere declared that even ".22" cartridges might cause serious damage or bodily harm, especially the "long" variety, which are sold in boxes clearly marked to the effect that they are dangerous within a mile range.

Shirley Lamson Bride In Exeter

The Exeter Congregational church was the scene of the marriage last Saturday afternoon of Miss Shirley L. Lamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett C. Lamson of Court street, and Richard W. Hodgdon, son of Chauncey H. Hodgdon of 29 Shelburne avenue, Portsmouth. A double ring service was performed by the Rev. Paul T. Martin, pastor, assisted by the Rev. Arthur Acy Rouser, pastor of the North Congregational church in Portsmouth.

Mrs. Robert Reardon of Rye was maid of honor; Mrs. Everett Lamson, Jr., Marion Hodgdon of Portsmouth, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Jacqueline Landers and Miss Louise Rand of Rye, bridesmaids, and Aviation Cadet Philip Hodgdon, best man.

Miss Lamson is a graduate of the Portsmouth High school, class of 1939, and is a member of one of Exeter's old families. She was also graduated from the Forsyth Training school, and has been a secretary in the office of Dr. C. E. Flanigan of Portsmouth.

Mr. Hodgdon is a graduate of Portsmouth High school in 1938 and from the Wentworth institute of Boston. He is in the employ of the Lynn General Electric company. Following a trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hodgdon will reside in Lynn.

South Hampton 200 Years Old

The 200th anniversary of the incorporation of South Hampton was observed last Sunday afternoon in the Town Hall, with Gov. Robert O. Blood as one of the speakers.

The chief executive paid tribute to the town's glorious past, and stated: "We of the state at large honor you in this observance and honor you, also, for what you are doing in our total program for victory."

Due to wartime conditions, the observance was restricted to a two-hour program, which more than 250 persons attended.

Boys' Club Being Formed In Epping

Plans are being made to organize a boys' club in Epping and the vestry of the Methodist church in that town, which has been closed for five years, will serve as headquarters.

Any high school boy may join the club, which will provide facilities for wholesome recreation for Epping youths. It is expected that the club will be in operation within two weeks.

Meanwhile, the vestry is being cleaned and painted by prospective members.

HAVE you ever thought how much a million dollars really is? Sure is an awful lot of nice things a fellow could do with a million dollars . . . if he had it. A million dollars is a lot of money.

Just think . . . it would take about three weeks, counting as fast as you could 24 hours a day, just to count up to a million.

I read in the paper the other day that the beer industry pays more than a million dollars a day in taxes . . . Federal, State and local. Every day . . . more than a million dollars.

I guess the government is glad to get that help these days, what with a war to win and pay for.

Of course, not all of that beer tax money goes to the Federal government. Quite a lot of it goes to the States and is used for such useful purposes as public health, emergency relief, old age assistance, education and public welfare.

Farmers surely ought to like the beer industry, too, from what I hear. Last year the brewers bought nearly two billion pounds of barley malt and nearly half a billion pounds of corn and corn products. And plenty of rice and hops, too. That's a lot of farm products.

Back around '33 and '34, when the tough old depression was hitting all of us pretty hard, farmers were certainly glad to sell those extra crops that beer bought from them. And come to think of it, when beer came back it made lots of new jobs for plenty of other people, too. City folks and country folks both.

If I hadn't gone in for this writing business, I think I'd like to have tried my hand at the brewing business.

I'd like to be making a fine tasting beverage that helps the public treasuries so much and that people can rightly call the "beverage of moderation." That moderation incidentally is another of the fine things about beer.

LES KENNEDY AGAIN SHINES IN GOLF MEET

Les Kennedy, golf professional last season at the Rockingham Country Club in Newmarket, led eight rivals when he posted a 36-hole total of 144 in the Boston district's qualifying play in the Hale America tournament at Woodland in Newton, Mass., Monday.

Ted Bishop of Woodland, New England amateur title-holder, was in second place, and three other Woodland amateurs also qualified. They were John Corcoran, secretary of the Massachusetts Golf Association; Fred McGlone, Boston marathon star, and John O'Donnell.

Kennedy, 24 years old and a resident of Lynnfield, Mass., surprised golf enthusiasts all over the country last March when he defeated some of the nation's stars, including Champion Sammy Snead, with par-smashing scores in the early rounds of the North and South open championship at Pinehurst, N. C. That tournament was finally won, however, by Ben Hogan, former champion.

Church Interior To Be Repainted

At a business meeting of the Community church last Sunday, it was voted to follow a recommendation of the painting committee and redecorate the interior of the church during the summer.

The committee comprises Fred Philbrick, George Hardy, Charles Stevens, Fred Durell, Ralph Waugh, Mrs. John Kent, Mrs. Bela Kingman and the pastor, Rev. Russell G. Schofield.

It was also decided to continue meetings of the Young People's Society through the summer and to sponsor projects to raise money for the paint fund.

125 At Memorial Sunday Services

Approximately 125 members of Robert G. Durgin Post, American Legion; the Legion Auxiliary and George A. Gay Chapter, Women's Relief Corps, attended Memorial Sunday services at the Community church in Newmarket. Ernest Nisbet, post commander, acted as marshal and the color bearers were Walter Gillis and John Twardus.

In a sermon on "Rearing Monuments," the pastor, Rev. Russell G. Schofield, drew a contrast between the monument erected by Absolom to himself in greed and those honoring real heroes for devotion to duty and loyalty.

54,844 In Last N. H. Registration

Brig. Gen. Charles F. Bowen, state director of Selective Service, announced officially this week that a total of 54,844 men between the ages of 45 and 64, inclusive, were listed during the fourth registration recently completed in New Hampshire.

Board 19 (Portsmouth) enrolled 3,317 while Board 20 (Exeter) reported 3,317 and Board 20 (Exeter) reported 3,458.

Sergt. Cohen In N. Y. Maneuvers

Tech. Staff Sergt. Theodore Cohen, who is stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, recently spent a six-day furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cohen of Newmarket.

Upon his return, he left for Pine Camp, New York, where he is to engage in maneuvers.

Army Calls Make Changes In Stores

A. J. Casavant of South Berwick, Me., has been made manager of the Atlantic & Pacific store in Newmarket to succeed Harold Noel, who has returned to army service at Fort Devens, Mass., after having a 10-day furlough to complete his business duties.

Mr. Casavant has served as manager of several of the company's stores in this area.

Herbert Foster of Newmarket has been engaged as clerk at Joseph Brisson's market, replacing Frank Toland, who is at Camp Meade in Maryland. Toland, who has had previous army experience, was inducted at Fort Devens and arrived at Camp Meade in less than a week after leaving Newmarket.

Newmarket POLISH CLUB Notes

The Polish Women's Club met last Friday night to discuss plans for participation in Newmarket's Memorial Day parade. The ladies will wear their uniforms and contemplate turning out in large number. Mrs. Joseph Hendzel, president of the organization, presided at the session.

"Pat," the cocker spaniel owned by Victor Seaman, is a frequent visitor at the club and has a large appetite for kielbasy. His boss is wondering who operates the motor boat nightly along the Lamprey River to disturb his slumbers.

Despite protests from admirers, "Dola" Pohopek refuses to resume his maiden name of Adolph. He says: "There is not enough room on this earth for two Adolphs. When the other goes, I'll resume my former identity. When his mustache no longer disgraces the world, I'll re-seed mine."

The large card table was missing at the club this week while undergoing reconditioning. This is the first time that the table, which has seen the crowning of many a cribbage champion, has been out of action during its 38-year history.

Harry Pitts, the young magician who entertained at the Civilian Defense Council carnival some time ago, visited the club during the past week. He was on his way to Chicago to enter a plastic design school.

The boys couldn't wait for Joe Pete to get an army furlough to come back and put up the clubhouse awning, so a volunteer was finally found to do the job.

Town Treasurer John Kustra has planted two bushels of spuds in his Victory garden.

Word was received this week that two more members would enjoy reading the Newmarket News every week. So the club has added these names: Pvt. Louis W. St. Hilaire, Provisional Training Det., 29th Division Co., Fort George Meade, Md., and Pvt. Alphonse J. St. Hilaire, Co. C, 7th QM Training Regiment, Camp Lee, Va. John Pazdon and John (More Glamorous Than Ever) Dziedzic have been home on furlough from the naval training station at Great Lakes, Ill. This is their first trip back to Newmarket since entering the service.

There's a sad story this week about poor George Grochmal, chief steward, who had been laid up for several days with a mysterious back ailment. Around presstime, George was just about getting through a chiropractor's treatment, and everybody was hesitant as to whether to send "get well" condolences or publish a card of thanks. Friends were relieved of some of their worry when Charlie Miesowicz agreed to accompany him to Dover and pace up and down the street while George's spine was restored to normal. Knowing George pretty well, these pals figured he would send Charlie in for the vertebra adjustments and let George do the strolling.

John Kustra is substituting for "Dola" Pohopek, who was supposed to have been succeeded on the steward's trick by George Grochmal.

There is a rumor around the club that Joe Pete has been ill at his Rhode Island military base, and friends are more anxious than ever to hear a word from him. He might as well be Private Sphinx of the U. S. Army, as far as his former comrades are concerned.

A card was received during the past week from Pvt. Joseph Miesowicz, stationed in California.

Misty Kustra has been renovating the club's tables and is also building boats. Club pals think he will soon have something to do with Uncle Sam's boats—either building 'em, helping to man 'em, or riding on 'em to an unknown destination.

The Dover Draft Board has called Eddie Ross for induction on June 3.

Chief Steward George Grochmal is considering the appointment of an official censor for this column. Seems there has been a leak of too many non-military secrets.

Note to Private Joseph Miesowicz, U. S. Army: Most of the draft survivors are sticking close to the club rooms these nights because the gasoline restrictions won't permit them to go far away. This, of course, applies to your brother, Charlie—so don't worry, Joe!

Frank Pelczar, a club caller the other night, expects to be shouldering arms shortly.

Pvt. Chester Kruczek is due to be home on furlough from his camp at Niantic, Conn., over this week-end.

Corp. Joseph Pelczar has been on a 10-day furlough from Camp Edwards, Mass.

COURSE IN NURSING EDUCATION. Never in the history of nursing have greater opportunities existed for patriotic service than during this grave emergency. Even greater opportunities await graduate nurses during the reconstruction and rehabilitation period following close of the war. The Bridgeport Hospital School of Nursing, with top rating in professional circles, offers a 3-year course to qualified young women. The school, accredited by the State of Connecticut, enjoys reciprocity with other states. Education in the large and modern-equipped Bridgeport Hospital (400 beds) offers well-rounded preparation. Requirements: Graduation from high school (academic course); two years each mathematics, social science and one language and one year each biology and chemistry. Classes start September and January. Because of limited enrollment, early application is advisable. For details, write: Director, Bridgeport Hospital School of Nursing, Bridgeport, Conn. 37x1p

Plan Defense In Outlying Areas

Information centers for outlying districts of Exeter were discussed at a recent meeting held by F. Leroy Junkins, Exeter civilian defense chairman, with Farm Bureau and Extension Service representatives and chairmen of emergency groups.

Miss Martha Garland of the extension service, Mrs. Leonard Hunt, co-chairman of the defense committee, Mrs. James A. Purrington, director for food preparation, George Gooch, fuel chairman, and Frank Goodale, conservation chairman, assisted in laying out points to be used as centers, and in assigning the people to act as advisors for residents of those neighborhoods.

MRS. KENDRIGAN PUSHES LOCAL SALVAGE WORK

The importance of the New Hampshire campaign to collect old paper, rubber, metals and other materials needed for war production was stressed in a statement this week by Mrs. Benjamin Kendrigan, chairman of salvage work in Newmarket.

Mrs. Kendrigan pointed out that one old flatiron will furnish scrap for three machine guns; 100 pounds of old paper, carton for 35 anti-aircraft shells; 50 feet of garden hose, rubber for four army raincoats, and 32 toothpaste tubes, the tin needed for one fighter plane.

Gov. Robert O. Blood is working out a systematic plan for collection of metals, according to Mrs. Kendrigan, and people in the rural areas should list all the old materials which they will give away or sell. Mrs. Kendrigan also revealed that anyone who has large quantities of old paper, rubber, metals, etc., which they will not sell or give away, should be reported to the local Civilian Defense Committee.

Under present plans, dealers must send out their collections of salvaged materials within 60 days.

New Hampshire is also progressing in its program of rushing old automobile bodies to steel mills.

Further information regarding this important salvage program may be secured from Mrs. Kendrigan.

First Aid Bags Near Completion

Miss Rena Young, who is supervising the making of 195 first aid bags by Newmarket first aid workers, reports that the bags which were designed by Mrs. Helen Wills, R. N., are nearing completion.

The bags, which consist of bed ticking, with many inside pockets to hold first aid equipment, have been made by a dozen women headed by Mrs. Warren Woodward and Mrs. Etta Hersom.

Some of the bags are equipped with zippers, others with snaps and all have long straps to go across the wearers' shoulders.

Canteen Class Is Graduated

Red crosses were presented to 15 women who were graduated in the Newmarket canteen class Friday night in the Community church vestry, which, together with the kitchen has been offered as permanent headquarters for the canteen workers for the duration of the war.

Prior to the graduation exercises, an emergency menu was served in the vestry for 77 Newmarket residents.

The canteen is under the direction of Mrs. Meta Branch and the class was instructed by Miss Molly Ladd of Epping.

Members of the class included: Preparation committee, Mrs. Fred Philbrick and Mrs. Theodore Coolidge; as well as Mrs. Branch, Mrs. Jollie, Mrs. I. T. George, Mrs. O'Donnell, Mrs. Nicholas Bouras, Mrs. John E. Kent; service, Mrs. Crook, Mrs. Sophie C. Bateman, Mrs. Katie Harris, Mrs. George; housekeeping, Mrs. Ione Kent, Mrs. Albert Sands, Mrs. Stella Cilley.

Sewing Group Enjoys Annual Outing In Hub

The Sewing Club of Newmarket had its third annual celebration on May 16 and 17 at the Hotel Statler in Boston.

After a shopping tour of Boston, the club members enjoyed dinner and dancing at the Hotel Essex.

Sunday noon, they had dinner at the New Adams House, and later they went to see "Reap the Wild Wind" at the Metropolitan Theater.

The members are: Miss Ernestine Perreault, Mrs. Theresa Call, Mrs. Annabel Baillargeon, Mrs. Caroline Gazda, Mrs. Stephania Hamel, Mrs. Tillie Gazda, Mrs. Joan Kustra and Mrs. Ruth Jakubowski.

Does "V" really stand for "Victory?" Ask Annabel.

Garneau Store In Newmarket To Close Soon

It was announced this week that one of Newmarket's best known business establishments is soon to pass out of existence.

The store operated by Mrs. L. P. Garneau at 124 Main street for the past 17 years will be closed after all the merchandise has been sold to the retail trade.

Mrs. Garneau, who had never been in business before, purchased the store in 1925 from L. C. LaPorte, who had operated it for 12 years.

Mrs. Garneau has always conducted the store as sole owner and many friends will regret to learn of her retirement. For some time, she has been assisted by her popular clerk, Miss Toni Sklarski.

They Are Not Dead

They are not dead who rest below!

They may be sleeping for all we know.

They are not dead; their spirits live,

To teach Humanity how to GIVE.

They are not dead who rest below,

Each humble bed, not made for show;

Has plenty of ease for the silent form

Who fought for Peace, and stilled a storm.

They are not dead who rest below,

So, harness your horse and ride on low

That armored hydrants may ride on high,

And armored hydrants more swiftly fly.

Put the horse in gear and ride on low,

He will take you, dear, where you want to go.

MARIE MALMQUIST.
