

NEWMARKET'S DEFENSE BASE ON FULL TIME

A 24-hour schedule has been arranged for the new Civilian Defense headquarters located over the office of the N. H. Gas & Electric Co. on Main street, Newmarket, according to Chief Air Raid Warden Austin J. McCaffrey.

The defense center has been equipped with a large control table with seating capacity for 15 persons, maps showing the location of all Newmarket houses as well as points of interest to fire, water and utility officials, and two special telephones. One of these lines connects with the Exeter sub-district center, from which an emergency signal would come, and will be used for only this purpose.

Meanwhile, Chief Warden McCaffrey, who is also headmaster of Newmarket-high school, revealed that the responsibility for school pupils in case of an enemy attack will be placed upon the School Board. After a defense meeting of school superintendents and headmasters in Concord, he announced that policies in this regard will be drafted with school officials' co-operation.

It is likely, he said, Newmarket children will be kept in the school during a raid because the local schools are sound, brick structures. This will avoid confusion and possible accidents in hurrying children to their homes.

NEWMARKET'S ARP SCHOOL COURSE OPENS

Methods of extinguishing incendiary bombs were discussed by Eugene Auerback, alumni secretary of the University of New Hampshire at the opening of Newmarket's ARP school at Newmarket high school Monday night.

Persons attending the school were impressed with the extreme importance of Newmarket people being trained in ARP work as the town is situated in the No. 1 air raid zone, only a few miles from the Portsmouth Navy Yard, a likely target for an enemy attack.

It was pointed out that sand is most effective in quenching the fire bombs, and Chief Air Raid Warden Austin J. McCaffrey revealed that the Board of Selectmen has made arrangements to furnish sand for Newmarket residents.

Mr. Auerback's talk was preceded by a motion picture, "The Warning," showing experiences with bombs in England.

A second session of the ARP school was conducted Wednesday night, when blackouts and shelters were the chief topic.

PHILOSOPHY SCHOOL HELD AT UNIVERSITY

The School of Philosophy held by the University of New Hampshire in co-operation with the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, was opened in Durham, Monday, with more than 100 extension workers, rural ministers, Farm Security attaches, Agricultural Conservation workers and other Granite States in attendance.

The agricultural background and goal of the United States in this emergency were discussed under the general theme, "New Hampshire Agriculture Takes Stock in a Time of Crisis."

Following a greeting to the University by Acting Director of Extension Henry B. Stevens, and the opening of the School by Dr. Morris B. Storer of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Dr. Samuel H. Cross of Harvard university presented an outline of the general social and economic backgrounds of the war.

Final speaker of the day, Paul Appleby, Under Secretary of Agriculture, presented the story of the agricultural program of the nation and outlined the aims of the great food production drive now going on.

The aim of the entire reorganization of the Department of Agriculture in the last seven years has been to enable it to help the farmer to adjust himself to changing markets and demands, he pointed out.

FARM LEADERS DISCUSS N. H. FOOD FOR WAR

Discussions on changing programs to meet the emergency conditions opened yesterday and are continuing today and tomorrow at the annual planning conference of the N. H. Extension Service at the University of New Hampshire in Durham. Agricultural workers from all over the state gathered for the sessions.

All agricultural, home demonstration, 4-H Club and recreational and organization workers from the 10 counties joined with university specialists and state extension leaders to tackle the problem of preparing New Hampshire for her part in providing food to help win the war.

Opening the Thursday morning parley, Henry Bailey, Stevens, director, discussed "Adjustments of Operations in Face of the Emergency." The workers then took up "District Planning Committees and the Agricultural Planning Program", with H. C. Woodworth and E. C. Perry of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the leaders. In the afternoon there was a general session on the "Older Youth Program," followed by sectional discussion of plans of work for 1942.

Today's sessions began at 8:30 a. m., with a general conference at which the new victory program was discussed. Earl P. Robinson, executive of the AAA in the state, discussed the Food for Freedom Program. Prof. J. R. Hepler, garden expert, led discussion on "War Gardens", and Miss Dairy D. Williamson, state home demonstration leader, spoke on the "Cooperative Nutrition Extension Program".

There were to be more sectional planning sessions in the afternoon

EXETER LIONS VOW LOYALTY TO ROOSEVELT

A pledge of 100 per cent support for President Roosevelt in all his defense efforts for the United States in the Second World War was made in a resolution adopted at a meeting of the Exeter Lions Club at the Exeter Inn, Monday night.

EXETER TEAM WINS HOCKEY MEET TROPHY

The Phillips Exeter Academy hockey team annexed a high honor last Saturday night at Lake Placid, N. Y., by defeating the defending champion, Northwood School, 3 to 1, to capture the Whiting trophy as a climax to the invitation tournament.

The forward line of Erdman, Sturges and Pontius furnished the spearhead of the Exonians' brilliant victory, giving a fine performance in every department.

Trailing by virtue of Dellis' opening score for Northwood, Exeter tied the count on a close shot by Sturges at 2:07 of the second stanza. Erdman took a pass from Chase to shoot the Exonians into the van at 7:05 of the same frame.

Exeter's final goal was tallied on a rebound from a Northwood stick that Goalie Bell misjudged. credit being

WILDCATS GET TOUGH BREAK IN ICE MEET

Misfortune helped to defeat the University of New Hampshire hockey team in the Lake Placid tournament last week, after the team, regarded before the meet as a week outfit, had pinned an 8 to 0 defeat on Union. The Wildcats were later nosed out by Cornell in the last period.

Eight Eastern colleges participated in the tourney, and U.N.H. lost to Williams in the semi-finals, 3 to 1.

Returning from the meet, the Durham players related the tough luck which contributed to their defeat in the finals.

Karl Adams of Concord, New Hampshire's star center, was taken ill the night before the William's game and despite the fact that he got no sleep and could not eat until shortly before gametime he gave the Wildcats their lone tally. Feeling much better by the time of the consolation game with Cornell, Adams paced the Cats as they made a comeback and managed to hold a highly touted Cornell to a 5-5 score until late in the final period when the Big Red managed to bang home three goals to take the game.

GIVEN HIGHER TELEGRAPH JOB

Norris D. Schroeder, former Exeter high school baseball, basketball and football star, who has been manager of the Western Union telegraph office in Claremont for seven years, has been promoted to manager of the company's office in North Adams, Mass.

There is an interesting story in connection with Schroeder's start in telegraphy work. During the winter of 1925, he assisted a woman to her feet after she had fallen on some ice, and on the following July 1, that grateful woman, Miss Fannie A. Murphy, then in charge of the Exeter Western Union office, gave him a job as a messenger. He was 14 years old at the time.

To augment his earnings he also delivered newspapers for five years under Bert Doe, veteran Exeter correspondent, for whom he covered schoolboy sports and other activities during his last three years of high school. Schroeder was graduated in June, 1931, and three days later, at the age of 20, he was made manager of the Exeter office of Western Union. A year later he married Dorothy Eleanor Sanborn of Laconia and Meredith. After staying in Exeter for three years he was transferred to Claremont in 1934.

Eagles Return To Exeter River

Winter has "officially" arrived in Exeter with the return of two eagles to the banks of the Squamscott River, where they have been a familiar sight for 40 or more years.

Perched on tree limbs, the birds usually watch for food in the form of refuse discarded on the river ice by fishermen.

The river was still open when they arrived this season, however, and they had to seek other means of getting food.

TRI TOWN CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING COLUMNS

Dear Editor:

I have read many of Dorothy Thompson's articles with great interest and generally with sympathy. I think the article in regard to the St. Pierre-Miquelon affair by Miss Thompson on Dec. 30th was one of the best and most important that I have read.

When I read of the action at Washington against the action of General deGaulle and the democratic action of the people of St. Pierre-Miquelon, I was greatly stirred and incensed in the same manner as evidently is Miss Thompson. I failed to see many of the reasons and consequences that she has enumerated. She has portrayed the situation in a wonderfully clear, impressive manner.

I do hope that we will not be left long in this inconsistent and most harmful situation. This same sort of short-sighted action has been taken in many instances by political groups and individuals in many communities and states. The matter of the principle involved and the far-reaching effects of inconsistent action is lost sight of all too often.

I had not thought of bringing in our state's inconsistent, and to my mind, very damaging policy in promoting the use of intoxicants and gambling, but really it is one of the most essential things to consider in connection with strengthening and promoting our preparedness and ability to cope with present conditions, and therefore, in my opinion, it cannot be considered too often or too seriously.

An editorial in the Exeter News-Letter of Jan. 1st speaks of the strength of the nation depending upon the strength and resources of the individual. This, of course, has been recognized always, but when we consider the great number of individuals whose lives are shortened or are incapacitated for any important service because their character, physical strength, and mental outlook has been warped and weakened by these vices the seriousness of the matter is made very clear, it seems to me.

Very truly yours,
RALPH E. MERAS

U. N. H. Girl Will Wed Ex-Mayor

The Rev. and Mrs. Harry E. Titus of Albany, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Owen Titus, a junior at the University of New Hampshire, and former Mayor Kennard E. Goldsmith of Portsmouth.

At the time of his inauguration, Mr. Goldsmith, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire, was one of the youngest mayors in the United States. He is now an inspector in the State Motor Vehicle Department.

Defense Course To Start Early

The University of New Hampshire has announced that the sixth defense training course in engineering drawing, as part of the United States Office of Education's defense program, has been advanced two weeks and will be started on Jan. 19.

There is no tuition fee for the course, which prepares young men and women for defense jobs as junior draftsmen, tracers and machine operators.

Gardeners Warned To Buy Seeds Now

Warning of a shortage of several kinds of seeds due to a poor harvest in the West and wartime blockade conditions which bar imports, J. R. Hepler, extension horticulturist at the University of New Hampshire, has advised New Hampshire people to buy garden seeds now for spring planting.

Swiss chard, spinach, and several other kinds of vegetable seeds will be extremely scarce, he warns.

Gardeners should order early to be sure they get the kinds of seed they prefer. At the same time, he suggests, they should be sure to order only what they need, to prevent waste of seed urgently needed by commercial vegetable growers. Sowing of all seeds as thinly as possible will produce good crops with the least waste.

A Happy New Year — We Hope

As Kid Hope jumps briskly into the 1942 ring, all the world is engaged in a gigantic battle royal and its inhabitants look the Kid over with the greatest of admiration, but they still think that the Kid, at best, is going to take quite a bruising before the next twelve-month period is over.

Billions of people trapped in the only world that they know cannot hazard a guess as to what their fate will be, and only those in the allied democratic nations can even hope.

All continental Europe, except brave Soviet Russia, now yields to the torturous whims of Hitler. No native of these lands can look forward through the next year with the faintest optimism. Whatever may be said against Communism, which in theory is still condemned by all true Americans, the fact remains that a world much drearier than it is today, if that is imaginable, would have been ushered into 1942 except for the supreme stand made against Hitler by the Soviets.

Britain has been given a most welcome respite from destructive bombings and an opportunity to improve her military and naval positions over a far-flung empire by being allied with Stalin. The United States, thrust into war with such treacherous suddenness, is certainly better able to meet her challenge with Russia on the side of the democracies.

The horrors of this second World War, which Germany alone once more instigated, with untold suffering for all mankind, are too much for most minds to try to comprehend. The brutalities still rampant in the Hitler-dominated areas, where a hundred persons are shot like rats for a minor slight (?) against a German soldier, make this New Year one of nothing but futility and despair for many countries. The lies handed out to them on the progress

The Rev. William H. Easton of Baltimore, Md., who was visiting his son, Howard W. Easton, a member of the Phillips Exeter Academy faculty, preached the sermon last Sunday morning at the Exeter Congregational church.

Friends have learned with regret that Leonard E. Pearl of the chemistry department of Phillips Exeter Academy, is seriously ill at a hospital in Burlington, Vt. He went to Burlington for the Christmas vacation.

NO FOUNDATION WHATEVER TO RUMORS THAT GOVERNMENT WILL SEIZE SAVINGS

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and other officials are seeking to quell a growing crop of rumors which are believed to be the result of fifth column activities, indicating that the government is expecting to curtail, confiscate or freeze bank accounts, savings and other funds.

Telegrams are being sent out declaring, "Most emphatically there is no foundation whatever for the rumors," and further, that the "Federal Government does not have under consideration any proposals involving the seizure of private bank deposits in this country for any purposes whatsoever. Anyone circulating rumors of this character is acting against the interests of the Government and the people of this country."

Let's Forget Ourselves

During the holidays I was on exhibition. It was at the Methodist Fair in East Rochester, and it came as a sort of surprise.

I was trying on aprons when the exhibit occurred. This is not as simple as it sounds, for the aprons refused to move into place as they should, and stopped half-heartedly part way down over my ample proportions. I really wouldn't have minded the trial, had I not suddenly become aware of the fact that I had acquired a sizable audience. The ladies, who had come in to view the beautifully arranged booths with their useful and dainty articles, somehow, had gotten sidetracked at the apron table, and were watching me with the keenest interest.

Each nodded gravely in turn as the ladies at the booth brought out more and more aprons for my approval. It was rather embarrassing for a lady would smile and say: "Oh, yes, that will fit her. It would be plenty large for me," whereupon she would offer herself sacrificingly as a model, and—sure enough—the apron would glide easily into place on her, and stubbornly refuse to fit me.

It did floor me for I had been positive in my own mind that I was not any larger, if, indeed, as large as the person in question. My face was steadily growing more flushed, and I felt that every moment my figure was increasing to gargantuan proportions, while the aprons were shrinking in size.

Now I pride myself that I am not of a sensitive makeup. I do not easily get my feelings hurt, and I can most always "take it," but for a little while that day, I wasn't any too pleased with the world in general and

Wildcat Hockey Team Loses 7-5

The University of New Hampshire hockey team was defeated 7-5 by the Boston Eagles, New England League champions, in a game played in 10 below zero weather in Durham last night.

The Wildcats drew first blood when, after 11 minutes of play, Karl "Red" Adams drove the puck home without assistance.

Adams starred throughout the game, while Paul Nugent, the Durham goalie, carried off defensive honors by making more than 40 stops.

Exeter Has Many Social Gatherings

verse's all-time rule that "Right Conquers Might," the freedom-loving nations will have gone a long way before Dec. 31, 1942, in slapping down forever the international gangsters now on the prowl.

Just remember, in wishing for a Happy New Year in 1942, that only four great men in this entire world can make it possible and their names are Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin and Chiang.

Philosophy School . . .

A warning against believing that democratic form of government will be established in Germany "no matter how thoroughly they 'lick' Hitler", was voiced by Dr. Samuel H. Cross, professor of Slavic languages at Harvard University.

Speaking at the second day session, Mrs. John D. Jameson, who was introduced as the "Homemaker of Sugar Hill," expressed the hope that sometime rural people will be as well understood as plants and animals.

She said development of personality, good character and health, leadership ability, parent education and real rural community needs must be considered in the rural program of the future.

Dr. J. H. Kolb, professor of rural sociology at the University of Wisconsin, declared the capital of rural society is gradually moving out of the country into the village.

Insisting that the use and values of the little open-country neighborhoods must be maintained, he suggested they be made a part of the bigger community, but keep their identity, with benefits of centralization extended out to them.

Speakers at the final gathering of the three-day session included Reuben Markham, for 15 years Balkan correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor; George E. Farrell of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics, and Dr. Kolb, who had previously spoken at the School of Philosophy.

Our enemy, he said, is a gigantic conspiracy on the part of Nazism and Fascism, to push back into oblivion, all progress in history made by the agrarian and peasant masses to get out of the serf class.

Mr. Farrell told of the sacrifice which Americans must make to win the war and urged them to roll up their sleeves, tighten their belts; plan half of each day's work for the cause of freedom and the other half for the normal demands of life.

Exeter High School Notes

The Exeter high basketball team started its season off with a bang by defeating the alumni with the narrow margin of one point.

This is the first time in several years that the high school boys have defeated the powerful alumni team. The game was made a major success otherwise also by the aid of the new scoreboard. It certainly is a great improvement. The large number of spectators who witnessed this game all agree that it is much easier to follow the game and much more interesting to them with this new board.

Much hustling and bustling has been going on lately because of the civilian defense program. Everyone seems to be doing his part in the best manner he can. Trail air-raid alarms are expected to be held shortly to give the pupils the necessary practice in evacuating the schools immediately in the even of any such air raid.
