

NEWMARKET MANAGER URGED

NEWMARKET, EXETER GOOD IN RAID TEST

Despite difficulties in reaching three wardens who lack telephones, Newmarket people were quick to respond to the first surprise air raid alarm sounded all along the New Hampshire coastal area at 10:32, o'clock Tuesday night, and the town achieved a "100 per cent" rating, according to Chief Air Raid Warden Austin J. McCaffrey and Blackout Officer Herbert Philbrick.

Exeter also went through the test with "100 per cent" efficiency, it was announced by Frank Nay, local defense leader, and Chief Air Raid Warden James A. Pirnie.

In Portsmouth, key warning center, County Defense Chairman Alvin F. Redden gave a verdict of "very successful" after 500 air raid wardens, under the direction of Chief Air Raid Warden Frank J. Massey, had gone into action, together with other volunteer defense groups.

In Newmarket, three cases were reported in which men were spoken to because of lighted cigarettes and pipes.

The public was most cooperative and lights winked out at the sound of the siren. Boy Scouts and high school students acted as runners in carrying messages to the report center, some of the youngsters running as far as a mile. They are equipped with special flash lights and arm bands that show up through the blackness. As soon as the sirens wailed, canteen workers got busy making coffee and sandwiches and these were served to workers after the all clear.

The first green light signal was received by Mrs. Edwina Bennett at her home at 10:05 p. m. She immediately contacted all members of the Defense Council, and all except one official, who was deployed, reported for duty before the second green light signal at 10:30. The third green light was received at 10:36.

The difficulty in reaching three of the town's 36 wardens, especially in New Village, proved to the officials that substitutes must be trained to act in case the regular wardens are absent, ill, employed or unable to respond in an emergency. The 100 per cent rating was possible, however, because residents in the areas where wardens were missing doused their lights, anyway.

Streets were clear during the blackout. No traffic moved and pedestrians were kept off the sidewalks. There was splendid cooperation everywhere, the leaders reported.

In Exeter, all agencies reported as intended and no accidents were reported.

The Exeter Manufacturing company and the Exeter Brass Works, both busy on war production, were allowed to keep lights on but the rest of the town was completely blacked out.

At Rockingham Junction, a wide-awake air raid wardens acted on the first of the three signals and managed to have all homes in his area darkened exactly one minute before the actual blackout call.

EAGLES TO STAGE PARADE SUNDAY IN OBSERVANCE OF MOTHERS' DAY

Lamprey Aerie No. 1934, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will hold a parade in Newmarket, Sunday, May 10, in honor of Mothers' Day. All Eagles are requested to attend and each will be furnished with a carnation to wear. The procession will start at 2 o'clock sharp from Eagle Hall.

Following the parade, an initiation class will be held, with Worthy President David Baillargeon presiding.

During the week, this newspaper received a pamphlet entitled "The Story of Mothers' Day", from national headquarters of the Eagles.

Besides a lengthy article on the origin of Mothers' Day, the pamphlet contained a photo of the commemorative tablet in the lobby of English's Opera House in Indianapolis, Ind., which is inscribed as follows: "On This Site, Sunday, February 7, 1904, the First Known Public Plea for a Nation-Wide Observance of Mothers' Day Was Made by Frank E. Hering, Teacher, Orator, Humanitarian. In Commemoration of Mothers' Day and in Honor of Its Beloved Founder, the Fraternal Order of Eagles Erects This Tablet, May 10, 1931."

The plaque was the tribute of Indiana Eagledom to the man who conceived the idea of a nationwide tribute to all mothers.

The story, written by Audrey Boyers Walz, relates:

"A prophet might have foretold the young speaker's brilliant future—that as Grand Worthy President of the F. O. E. (one of the few men to serve two terms), as chairman of its Old Age Pension Commission, secretary of its Stabilization of Employment Commission, and editor of its official journal, Frank Hering would address almost forty Grand Aeries, urge the passage of important measures before legislative bodies, one day speak in the amphitheater of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. And the prophet also would have added that the speaker never would deliver an address more significant than the one he made on the afternoon of February 7, 1904. For, on that day, speaking with all the sincerity of one who long had pondered the subject and with all the magic of a natural orator, Frank E. Hering urged his listeners to set aside a day of tribute to mothers and motherhood.

"The young professor whereof he spoke. As an authority on American history, Frank E. Hering knew how great a part the staunch courage of the pioneer mother played in the foundation of this Republic. He knew, too, that in every epoch, noble women inspired men's finest achievements. He felt that the contribution of all mothers to our society should be acknowledged publicly. His listeners heard him with deep emotion, all unknowing of the fact that they had taken part in an historic event—the first-known public plea for the establishment of a nationwide Mothers' Day."

CONVICT PAIR IN NEWFIELDS HOUSE BREAK

Charles Lane of Exeter and Carl Fogg of Amesbury, Mass., have been found guilty in Rockingham Superior Court in Portsmouth on charges of breaking, entering and larceny at the home of Edwin C. Whittemore in Newfields. Previously, Herbert Pease of Newfields had also been convicted in the same case.

Fogg was sentenced to from four to five years in state prison by Judge H. Thornton Lorimer. Fogg's bail was fixed at $3,500 and he was remanded to the county jail.

The cases of Lane and Pease were continued for sentence and each was placed on probation for five years.

LENGTHY REPORT CITES TOWN AS ONE OF SEVERAL IN STATE THAT HAS DISCUSSED SYSTEM

Newmarket is cited as one of several New Hampshire towns in which "citizens have at one time or another regarded the idea of a municipal manager with some favor," it is stated in a lengthy report on the town manager plan, issued this week by the N. H. Federation of Taxpayers' Associations.

The Federation points out there are 58 manager communities in New England alone, 29 of them being in Maine and 19 in Vermont, and New Hampshire and Rhode Island are the only states in New England lacking a single manager city or town.

NEWMARKET GIRL TO GET UNH DEGREE

More than 360 University of New Hampshire seniors will receive their degrees Sunday, May 10, as the first graduating class of the Second World War concludes a speeded-up college year, ready to aid the country in its hour of need.

Among those who are candidates for degrees is Edythe M. Kenney of Newmarket. Miss Kenney will receive her Bachelor of Science degree in bacteriology. She has been active in the German Club, the Lens and Shutter Club, and has played on the woman's basketball team while at the University.

CANTEEN UNIT SERVES FIRST AID CLASSES

Fifty members of graduating Red Cross first aid classes were served by the canteen class in the Newmarket high school laboratory last Friday night under supervision of the new chairman, Mrs. Meta Branch.

Mrs. John Kent and her committee planned a hot dish and coffee. They were prepared by Mrs. Albert Crook and committee and served by Mrs. Albert Sands and committee. Mrs. Fred Philbrick and committee had charge of housekeeping.

Plans were advanced for refreshments to be served members of the Defense Council on the night of the surprise blackout. It was also announced that a public supper will be served for 100 persons on May 14.

600 Chicks Perish In Deerfield Fire

Six hundred day-old chickens perished when a brooder house was destroyed by fire late Friday afternoon at the farm of Leslie E. Knox on Middle road in Deerfield. The loss was estimated at $500.

Another brooder house containing 1,000 chickens and the Knox residence were saved, with the help of the wind.

The blaze was attributed to explosion of an oil-burning brooder stove.

"Yet, interest in the manager plan is measurably growing with in New Hampshire," the report adds. "Wartime emergency creates greater demand for municipal government fully capable of enlightened, intelligent, quick-moving leadership.

"When the emergency is over will Portsmouth have miles of highway which are scarcely used? School houses mostly empty? Fire stations not at all earning their keep? Sewers, street lights and water systems on which no tax income is received? If that does occur, then not only Portsmouth, but Rockingham County, and the whole state will have to pay the piper.

"A city manager, experienced and able, could have saved and could still save the citizens of Portsmouth may bitter headaches. Less obvious perhaps, are the headaches which he could save in any sizable New Hampshire community.

"The general feeling of dissatisfaction with the present structure of municipal government in New Hampshire has, in the last few years, begun to express itself with definite action on the part of citizens in a number of localities. In both Conway and Littleton, committees have been appointed by town meeting vote to consider the manager plan, for a later town meeting. The 1942 town meetings of Derry and of Gorham voted on motions to adopt the manager plan, motions which had been preceded by little explanation of the plan and its merits, and were voted down.

"Milford and Wolfeboro, at an earlier date, had considered the manager plan, and some public interest still remains. Franklin, Claremont, Lebanon, Manchester, Meredith and Newmarket citizens have at one time or another regarded the idea of a municipal manager with some favor.

"Our New Hampshire laws include two which permit the adoption of the manager form of government. Chapter 69 of the laws of 1929 enable a town, by inserting proper article in the warrant, to vote on town management. Chapter 186 of the laws of 1929 permit a city, upon petition of 3% of the legal voters, to vote on city management.

"It is reported that Lebanon citizens, much interested in the Vermont manager experience, wrote our New Hampshire laws. This seems plausible, since our laws are very similar to those of Vermont, borrowing whole sections of the Vermont law.

"Under the New Hampshire law, the manager would supersede all town boards or commissions, except school boards, and would assume their administrative powers. (continued on page eight)

CHAPTER 5 The Lone Rider

A returned soldier, riding a tired but well-conditioned horse along a country road in western Massachusetts, was on his way home. Both were tired, tired to death, and even the slow pace at which they were travelling was too exhausting for both rider and horse. Thank God, he would soon be home. How good the word sounded. Month after weary month spent on a hospital cot had robbed the world of much of its lustre; still, there was much in the beauty of the early autumn foliage to appeal to him, weak to faintness as he was. The fragrance of falling leaves, the radiant beauty of the forest was something he had feasted his eyes on ever since he left the hospital, not because he had been well enough to leave, but because he was less sick than others worse off than he.

One hundred and twenty more miles to travel, and he would be home. His wife,—how he longed to see her! His little Della, born after he had gone South. What would she be like? And then he thought of himself. He had changed during these frightful war years, that he knew; but would he have changed so much that his wife saw in him not the man she could care for. He, Hugh Clayton, was no longer the handsome and sprightly specimen of virile manhood that he was when he married her. He was just a wreck of his former self, he told his horse over and over again. A white farmhouse ahead caught his eye, half hidden by surrounding trees. In the fading light he could see the farmer himself seated on the front doorstep, smoking his evening pipe.

He had been riding since daylight on an already tired horse. Over rough byways, shortcuts, he had been told, and now he was spent. He could ride no farther. The farmer assisted him from the saddle, had the choreboy take the horse, and his wife get a bed ready. In the morning, Hugh Clayton was dead. That was in late September, 1864.

From papers found in the dead man's pocket, Mr. Reed learned that the man was Capt. Hugh Clayton, and hailed from a small town in eastern New York State, had been discharged from a hospital in Boston three weeks before, that he was thirty-seven years of age and had enlisted in 1861.

One young man in the neighborhood volunteered to ride to the town mentioned in an unopened letter never sent, but after a fruitless search, returned. The house designated had been unoccupied for a year, and no one seemed to know where the family could be found. Hugh Clayton was buried from the little farmhouse in which he had died. Mr. Reed kept the papers.

Years went by. The dead man's belongings had been kept in sacred trust by Mr. Reed, and ready for any one who might rightfully claim them. The horse could have been sold so as to cover funeral expenses for the dead man, but Mr. Reed had not allowed himself to think of that. He was still in the Reed stable as late as the summer of 1869.

Perhaps Gideon Simms was not aware of how much he had been telling Jim Grant on the way up North. In his bluntly truthful way he had stated facts as he had come to know them. But Grant was keen of mind, a real Yankee with plenty of grit, intuition, and common sense, and his keen appreciation made it a pleasure for the Vermonter to tell of his impressions and experiences; and putting all together Jim Grant had a fair idea of what lay ahead for the nation as a unit. The war was over, but the aftermath was yet to come, was on the way now, as he saw it, and the hopelessness of it all gripped even his brave heart. Pap and Zeke had opened his eyes to some Negro traits that heretofore he had known nothing about. He had read, and absorbed, "Uncle Tom's Cabin"; he had mingled with refugee Negroes from the South, but as yet he had found nothing to compare with the loyalty to a friendly white man shown by Pap and Zeke. He was sure that nothing on this earth could turn Pap and Zeke against Simms. He even went so far as to be willing to wager, that should Simms turn traitor to them, that would never change their loyalty to him into hatred. Destined to play a part in the nation's struggle for prosperity in his later years, he could look back upon this trip as one of the most important of his life.

Once when Simms had, in a fit of temper, declared that the Southern slave owners were cruel, barbaric, brutal to the slaves, and, in short, not fit to live, Pap had said: "Mr. Simms,—sometimes they was kind." He, strangely enough, had declared that, "Coming from Pap that ought to be true."

Zeke had been silent nearly all the way. The scenery was new to him, the water in the small lakes they passed on the way bluer than any he had seen before. Once he had asked Pap, why they had "no sech water in Virginni", and Pap had not known.

It had been supposed to be a two-day trip, but it was in the afternoon of the third day that they arrived at their destination. As the team came to a stop in the Simms yard a dog barked from its kennel, and out on the veranda came, father, mother and the two Simms brothers to greet the son and brother. They had known that he was on the way; and had stopped the sawmill in honor of his coming, also to make arrangements for meeting him somewhere down state. The greeting was a hearty one, not a bit tragic. Gideon had come home, none the worse for fighting, and all was as it should be. Grant thought that they treated him more as if he were the hero, instead of just the driver for the real hero, Gideon Simms.

When Priscilla Drew came out to greet him the real Simms unconsciously revealed his inner self. When Jim had told him that he intended to get married in the Fall, and wished the three could have stayed for the wedding, Simms had said, "Lucky dog, you—no one is waiting to marry me." And now this!

There was no mistaking their feelings for each other. Jim had not once seen such a look of utter and complete bliss in the eyes of his Lizzie, as that he saw in the radiant face of Priscilla Drew.

Zeke was the next one to draw attention unto himself. Gideon told of the time when Zeke had staved off the attempt by two Confederate soldiers to make him a prisoner at the time when he lay helpless in the cabin. "This yere fellow has pockmarks all over him, and offen yer want to yer can take him, but I warned yer." They didn't take him.

CHURCH CLEARS DEBT, PASTOR'S PAY INCREASED

The last note has been discharged and the property of the Community Church in Newmarket is clear of debt, it was reported by the Rev. Russell G. Schofield, pastor, at the annual church meeting Monday night. It was voted to give the pastor a substantial increase in salary.

Reports on the annual every member canvass conducted the week previously showed that $2000 was raised thru this means. It was decided to keep the church open during the summer, with supply preachers to serve on five days in August.

An amendment to the constitution was adopted to create an executive council, which will assist the pastor in an advisory capacity. The group will consist of the moderator, serving as chairman; clerk, collector, treasurer, director of music, pastor, and members representing each church organization.

Ralph Waugh was renamed as moderator. Other officers elected are Mrs. Theodore A. Coolidge, clerk; Mrs. Fred B. Philbrick, collector; George F. Hardy, treas.; Bela Kingman, Fred Durell, Robert Mitchell, Milton Kimball, deacons; Mrs. Ellen Sharples, Mrs. Etta Hersom, Mrs. Mattie S. Durgin, Mrs. George C. Sewall, Mrs. Ralph Waugh, Mrs. Frank L. Sinclair, deaconesses; Mrs. John E. Kent, director of music; Fred B. Philbrick, Elmer Kimball, Walter J. Webb, Fred J. Durell, Charles Stevens, T. A. Priest, Ralph Berry, executive committee.

To encourage a war time canning record, the War Department announced a plan to pay higher prices to canners who will guarantee fixed minimum prices to growers.

Syd Langley Tosses Aside Plough and Pistol For Defense Job; Now He Needs Farmerette

Syd Langley, the Durham dirt farmer, Newmarket insurance man and challenger to pistol marksmen over a far-flung area, is rolling up his sleeves to tackle a new job.

On Monday morning, he will add his weight in toil to the huge working crew at the Portsmouth Navy yard. Bronzed by the sun in long hours of cultivating his 15 acre garden, he is a picture of physical fitness for the task ahead.

He may be neglecting his pistol practise temporarily, but as soon as all his affairs are straightened out, he promises to renew his challenge to Stewart Humphreys with more vigor than ever. Incidentally, Syd is looking for a farmerette (no charge for the ad). He figures a good farmerette who can operate the family bus, pluck weeds from the vast garden, and maybe feed the chickens, would be a valuable addition to the present farm crew in keeping things a-growin' while he does his bit in building Uncle Sam's fighting ships.

Syd wants a young farmerette, but good looks will receive small consideration, as his wife will put the okay on the successful candidate, anyway.

New Hampshire became an independent colony seven months before the signing of the Declaration of Independence, thanks to the temporary constitution drawn up by her Provincial Congress, and passed on Jan. 5, 1776.

Newmarket POLISH CLUB Notes

Some of the local boys, including Phil Turcotte, visited Camp Wetherill over the week-end. They were able to contact John Andrews and Walter Lamber and enjoyed a chat with them. However, the 'Polish Flash' (Joe Pete) could not be located. Immediately, suspicion arose as to just where he could be. Was it KP, or a crap game? We wonder!

Walter Lizak wrote us a very interesting letter and included a photo of himself. The photo will be posted with the other servicemen's pictures in a frame designated for that purpose. He is now in Florida.

Chief Steward George Grochmal had a very enjoyable week-end—at least it was apparent Monday morning. Upon investigation, we found out he and Charles Miesowicz invaded the state of Massachusetts Friday night. Their first stop was Boston, where they reviewed the Hollywood Caravan. A tour of night spots followed, and this must have been a novelty to Charles, but just the old routine for George. The next morning found them attending a real old-fashioned Polish wedding—and, boy, oh, boy! Then Monday, and regrets.

The club's regular monthly meeting will be held Sunday, May 10. A large attendance is expected.

Many compliments have been received by the stewards for the beautiful service flag displayed at the club.

Here's a scoop for the members of the Polish Club by their local "Winchell." Tony Kustra, Esq., is seriously considering going into the business of manufacturing a delicacy known as Polish kielbasy. It has been stated by a reliable source that Tony has been associating lately with a man who knows that particular business from A to Z. It was learned from the party who sat at an adjoining booth last Sunday that Tony asked many questions about kielbasy.

Attention, members of the Polish Club who are now in the services of the United States! If you have not already sent in your photo, please do so at your earliest convenience, so we can complete our album.

An old familiar voice was once again heard at the club the other evening. Frank Pelczar visited us and it sure seemed like old times to hear "Ow! La! La!—Maybe!" Frank has been working in Farmington and living there.

Pvt. John Sklarski visited the club Wednesday night.

An emergency meeting was hurriedly called Sunday noon after Adolph (Fish) Pohopak, the intrepid fisherman who had been prevailing upon the pond near Ruby Jewell's in Stratham, telephoned breathlessly that he had lost his skis in the swamp. Steward John Kustra sped "Buckshot" to the scene to rescue Adolph, who had also forgotten to take his waterwings along. Such funny things happen to "Fish" when he goes a-fishin'!

Rites Held For Albert Turcotte

Funeral services for Albert Turcotte, a former Newmarket resident who died in Montreal, were held in St. Mary's Church, Newmarket, with the Rev. Hector A. Benoit, D. D., celebrating the high mass and the Rev. J. Desmond O'Connor, also of St. Mary's, and the Rev. John McCarthy of Exeter serving as sub-deacons.

Arthur J. Rosaire, Leo, Leonidas and Joseph Turcotte and Philip LaBranch, Jr., were bearers and burial was in Calvary cemetery.

BOYS' CLUBS ENJOY HIKE AND BASEBALL

Nearly 25 members of the Community Boys' Club of the Community Church in Newmarket and the Exeter Boys' Club of the Exeter Methodist Church enjoyed a hike and baseball game at the Kimball Farm in Newmarket, Tuesday.

In the ball game, the Newmarket boys won by a score of 15 to 18. This team wants games with other 12 year-old boys and interested opponents should write to captain Albert L. Crook, Ash Swamp Rd., R.F.D., Newmarket.

Milton Kimball was the leader of the Newmarket boys at the outing, while the Exeter club boys were in charge of Miss Elizabeth Bourne.

A frankfort roast was enjoyed by the gathering.

NEWMARKET LEGION PLANS FOR MEMORIAL

Arrangements have been started by Robert G. Durgin Post, American Legion, for the annual Memorial Day parade in Newmarket, and it is hoped a firing squad may be assigned from Fort Constitution to assist in the ceremonies.

It is expected one member of the group of color bearers, which, with a total service record of 120 years, was an attraction of last year's procession, will not participate this year. First-Class Engineer Edward Conley, U. S. N., retired, has been accepted at the age of 72 for active shore duty by the First Naval District, Boston.

Others in last year's group, each with about 30 years of active service to his credit, included Chief Petty Officer Bert Langley, U. S. N., retired; Sgt. Fred Brown, U. S. A., an instructor at the University of New Hampshire, and Eugene Rousseau, who served many years in the U. S. Marines.

Business Firms Aid 4-H Boys On Entertainment

Contributions have been received from several Newmarket business firms toward the success of the entertainment to be held next Wednesday night in the Community Church vestry by the Happy Workers 4-H Club of boys.

Clifton J. Thompson and Aristotle Bouras remain in the lead as ticket sellers for the event, the proceeds of which will be used to send Newmarket club members to the Bear Hill Pond camp in Allentown during the coming summer.

A sketch, "Young America on the March," will be a feature of the evening and articles of food will be on sale.

Nicholas Bouras, Roy J. Bouse and Arthur W. Crook are members of the committee.

Club To Revive Children's Day

Each member of the Newmarket Women's Club will be privileged to invite two youngsters when the annual Children's Day custom is revived at a program tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Sinclair, a past president of the club and hostess for this occasion, has arranged a program including songs by the Junior Choir of the Community Church; readings by prize speakers at the high school; dances by Paula Longa and piano solos.

Her assistants will include Mrs. Mattie Durgin, Mrs. Lucey Sewall, Miss Laura Sewall, Mrs. Ralph Longa and Mrs. Harold Knights.

STRAFFORD SAVINGS BANK

Incorporated 1823

Deposits over $11,000,000. Deposits draw interest from first day of Every Month. XMAS CLUB SAVINGS, ENDOWMENT CLUB, LOW COST MORTGAGES, HOME PROTECTION MORTGAGE LIFE INSURANCE. Call or write for Literature explaining in detail the advantages these mediums offer—they are of interest to everyone.

Protected by Bankers Electric Protective system, Bullet Proof Glass, Counters, Chemical Warfare Gas.

In banking as in Art—Science and Music—that which is good endures. In speaking of the Strafford Savings Bank this is an expression of truth which is well spoken. The year 1823 marked the beginning of this conservative yet ever progressive institution which has filled an honorable part in the life of this entire part of the State.

With modern banking headquarters located at 75 Washington St., Dover, the Strafford Savings Bank offers intelligent, progressive banking based on experience and knowledge of sound banking principles.

The Strafford Savings Bank is first and last a Savings Bank, specializing in savings and the promotion of thrift. Its continuous and undivided attention is given to the policy of affording all patrons the very best savings service that is possible. It is not strange then that the Strafford Savings Bank has become a popular "Home for Savings" in this part of the State.

It quite naturally follows that a strong institution of this character, specializing in savings accounts, would be a safe place for you to place your savings.

Everyone should have a savings account. It is the first and most important step on the road to financial independence, and one that will be of great aid in making you sure of a competence in the twilight of your life. Consistent savings play a larger part than do large earnings in helping you to create an estate. It does not matter how much you earn; if you do not practice thrift and save you are never more than one step ahead of poverty.

The Endowment Club is a very attractive Savings Plan and enables one to establish a fund of $1,000 or more—to be completed whether you live or not. This is but another example of the superior service rendered by this time honored institution.

Time has demonstrated the soundness of the policies on which the incorporators founded the Strafford Savings Bank, and which have continued throughout its long years of faithful service. Through the many periods of financial stress this long established bank has been able to care for its patrons because its daily affairs have always been conducted in a sane conservative and normal business-like manner.

In this our Dover Review we are pleased to number this worthy institution and compliment Mr. Harold W. Brown, President, and Mr. George G. Towle, Treasurer, who are ably assisted by an honorable board of directors who guide the destinies of the Strafford Savings Bank.

Located at 104 Washington St., Dover, Phone 487, this institution offers a plan whereby those wishing to save a portion of their income both safely and profitably and one that has made possible to a great extent the ownership of homes by people of these communities by the thrifty use of their income.

A co-operative bank differs from other banks in many respects. The principle of systematic saving is accomplished by monthly payments on shares. Shares are issued in series and mature in about 12 years. New series are issued quarterly. Each shareholder must make a deposit on a specific date or be subject to a designated fine. This encourages regular saving and makes each shareholder more certain of carrying out his or her plan of saving.

Funds invested in the Dover Co-operative Bank are always available by withdrawal or by share loans which can be made at any time and paid to suit the borrower.

The real estate department of the Dover Co-operative Bank offers a flexible 10-20 year plan which enables one to purchase a home on divided monthly payments which are in keeping with the whole picture.

Durham, Hampton Nurses May Be Safe In Australia

Dispatches have indicated that Miss Rita Palmer of Hampton, an Army nurse, who was slightly wounded at Bataan, was safe in Australia when the Japanese captured Corregidor.

There is also a possibility that her close friend and co-worker, Miss Letha McHale of Durham and Chester, had escaped from Corregidor before its occupation.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Palmer of Hampton received a telegram from C. P. Nelson of Manassas, Va., saying his son, Lieut. (jg) Edwin R. Nelson, U. S. N., a doctor, had reached Australia safely and that Miss Palmer was in the party.

Mother's Day

As clear, as unclouded as Mother's love,
Dawns the second Sunday in May;
The blossoms beneath and the skies above
Smile sweetly on Mother's Day.
And, whether on one thing or other bent,
A sweet carnation, by common consent,
Adorns the jacket and coat.

Of soldier and sailor, merchant and priest,
And high and low in the town.
And MOTHER reigns, for today at least,
In each heart under jacket and gown.

What no one utters, the thought's unsaid,
That sweet carnation speaks unafraid
Of—Mother, the best in the world!

The man in khaki whose memory retains
Dark scenes from the Philippines,
Or Cuba, perhaps, and whose hands bear stains

This day from terror's scenes,
Today thinks of MOTHER, perhaps she is dead,
And the greensward covers her lowly bed,—

"My Mother, God bless her," he breathes.

And the sailor lad, "Wherever I roved;

Wherever a flag was unfurled,—
"Mong other boys' mothers I have but proved

My mother the best in the world".

He says as he touches the blossom with pride,
And looks far off—to that other side

Go the thoughts of the sailor lad.

And the merchant whose brain has been sadly perplexed

By problems of profit and loss;
And the priest who today in his Sunday text

Shows a glimpse of The Man On The Cross,—
Each echoes the thought of the other's breast

Wherever a sweet carnation finds rest,—

"My Mother, the best in the World!"
— MARIE MALMQUIST.

Rochester car owners will register next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 3.30 to 5 and from 6.30 to 8.30 p.m. at Spaulding High, Allen, Gonic, or East Rochester schools, and receive cards for the purchase of gasoline, rationing of which will go into effect in New England and eleven other eastern states Friday, May 15th.

Robert Frost, noted New Hampshire poet, delivered a lecture in the Phillips Exeter Academy chapel, Sunday night.

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

MAYBE I shouldn't admit it, but there are a few things about this writing job I really like.

For instance, I like the part where . . . after all the writin' and the routine is done . . . I just set back and think about things in general. (Oh, yes, that's part of the job, too.)

Doesn't matter much what I think about. Sometimes I concentrate on one thing. Sometimes I think of lots of things, one right after the other.

Usually, when I get to thinkin', I send down for some beer. Seems a glass of beer not only touches the spot but it also sort of helps the thinkin' mood along.

It's such a peaceful, friendly beverage. Sort of honest and human. And it tastes good.

I like to hold my glass of beer up to the light and look through it. That beautiful, golden-amber color kind of fascinates me. Reminds me of the sunny barley fields where beer gets its start.

After all . . . when you stop to think about it . . . beer is a simple, natural thing. I read somewhere that all it's made of is good, wholesome farm grains and water and a little yeast . . . with hops for flavor. Nature's process of fermentation and the age-old art of the brewer does the rest.

I guess that's why beer is so wholesome. It really is the beverage of moderation. You just can't imagine anybody getting into trouble drinking a few glasses of beer.

Well, here I am . . . going on and on thinking and talking about beer. Probably could go on for hours. That's the way I am when I set back and get to thinking about things.

And by the way, taking it easy and "just thinkin'" is fun. Try it sometime . . . quiet and comfortable like.

YOUR CAR How to Get the MOST out of It

Sales of new cars to the average citizen have been stopped. New tires cannot be purchased. Even retreads are being rationed.

In view of these wartime conditions, this newspaper today is starting, on an inside page, an interesting and timely series of articles entitled "YOUR CAR—How to Get the MOST out of It."

This series, based on material prepared by General Motors Customer Research staff in cooperation with General Motors engineers, Proving Ground experts, research technicians and service specialists, should prove helpful to every motorist in the crucial days ahead.

My pal Joe watches for airplanes at the defense lookout. He was doing the Dog Watch (2 to 4 a. m.) It's still cool on the Dog Watch and a fella appreciates a cup of coffee and a sandwich. When Joe took off the Pan Dandy Wrapper and bit into that bread he sort of clicked his teeth together as a fella does when he's satisfied. Just for fun I asked him if it mattered what bread he ate and Joe said, "Not when a guy is starving but when he's alive and going places—IT SURE by DOES: give me Pan Dandy every time

1 Ring Will Be Enough

The postman won't have to ring twice if the plans of this bevy of beauties work out. When Acting Postmaster Samuel R. Valliere of Miami Beach announced a shortage of male mail carriers due to the war, these pretty girls came to the rescue, offering to see that the famed post office motto is upheld. After a short course in mail delivery, they are shown leaving on a round. (Central Press)

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE IS CLOSING

James A. Purington, who is heading the annual financial campaign of the Salvation Army in Exeter, has announced that the campaign will be brought to a conclusion tomorrow with a Rose Day.

Rose Day will supplant the old-fashioned and out-moded tag days when Salvation Army supporters dangled tags from their persons like price tags on a store dummy. The little Red Rose buds, which have taken the place of the tags, are colorful in design and attractive in appearance. Bunched together, they form an excellent bouquet for many uses.

The Rose Day will be under the direction of Salvation Army Representative Andrew H. Bassett, who has been actively engaged in the campaign for the past two weeks. He will be assisted by Merton C. Huntley and George W. Dudley.

It is expected that with favorable weather conditions a goodly sum will be raised to put the quota over the top.

Need Workmen At Pearl Harbor

Pearl Harbor Naval Base needs more skilled shipfitting workmen, Harry Denning, manager of the Dover office of the United States Employment Service, announced Wednesday.

With qualified volunteers also needed for shipfitting jobs for the Panama Canal Zone, Mr. Denning declared that the new recruitment for Pearl Harbor lends emphasis to the need for able-bodied men to garrison vital American outposts for ship and airplane work.

"Since New England went over the top in meeting quotas for Pearl Harbor in January, we are confident that we shall again find enough volunteers ready to answer Uncle Sams call for skilled workmen", the manager said.

"Although New England shipyards are actively recruiting shipbuilding and shipfitting workmen through the U. S. employment Service," he said, "the Civil Service Commission has received promises from some of the largest companies to give the requested releases to any of their men who can and will answer this patriotic call."

Travel expenses will be paid by the government from the home city to Pearl Harbor or Panama, but families may not accompany the men accepted for this urgent assignment.

Wage rates range from $1.26 to $1.30 an hour for a 40-hour week for the Pearl Harbor jobs according to the classification and ability to perform the work, while living quarters in government housing are provided at reasonable cost.

Jobs at Pearl Harbor for which volunteers are urgently needed include the following: Aircraft mechanics, Boilermaker, Clipper and Calker, Electricians, Boilermaker helper, Outside Machinists, Aviation Metalsmith, Molder (Heavy Brass), Molder (Heavy Grey Iron), Molder (Heavy Steel), Pipecover and Insulator, Rigger, Shipfitter, and Shipwright.

Except for the Boilermaker Helper position, the rate for which is $0.78 an hour, all other positions range from $1.26 to $1.30 an hour for qualified workmen.

So rapid has been the increase of dairy products that butter, cheese and eggs are selling less at wholesale now than when the war came.

Town Manager Plan Is Urged

Specifically, he would have charge of water works and lighting when publicly operated by the town; he would construct, maintain and repair all town buildings, roads, sidewalks, bridge; he would do all purchasing; he would direct police and fire departments; he would administer parks, playgrounds, cemeteries, public welfare.

"The manager would appoint all get officer, with authority over all town departments for full and needed information on their operation.

The manager would appoint all employees for departments under his direction. He would fix their compensation."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S FIGHT - -

And Electric Appliances Do Their Part!

These are days of all-out defense when Americans need to conserve every bit of health, save every possible minute of time and avoid the waste of a single penny! Food and a balanced diet are as vitally important as planes, munitions, guns, and ships.

Fortunately, many of our customers are especially well prepared because they have the help of modern, efficient and economical electric kitchen appliances. All, with such appliances, can easily save food, time and money if they will use them wisely and completely.

Here's How:

KEEP THE GOOD IN YOUR FOOD. Be sure to put the milk, fresh vegetables, and fresh meats into your electric refrigerator the minute you get them home.

COOK THE GOOD IN YOUR FOOD. The electric range lets you cook vegetables with a minimum amount of water, thereby keeping the precious vitamins and minerals in the food instead of pouring them down the drain.

SMALLER ELECTRIC KITCHEN APPLIANCES are time savers too! They work for you like a staff of faithful servants. Don't keep them hidden away in some corner. The food mixer, electric waffle iron, coffee maker and toaster can be used not only to save you time but to save your larger appliances.
