CATHOLIC CHARITIES DRIVE BEGINS MAY 1st AT ST. MARY'S

The annual Catholic Charities Drive will begin in St. Mary's Parish on Sunday, May 1st, and will extend to Thursday, May 12.

In the words of our Most Reverend Bishop the Catholic Charities of the diocese are simply the bishop, the clergy and the people uniting to care for the weaker members. Much has already been accomplished through the generous response of the people to this annual appeal of the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Manchester. Just last year a new home for the aged was opened in Dover Point. This beautiful building accommodates approximately 60 elderly men and women. We may all look to St. Ann's Home with a rightful pride knowing

Two Fined In 'No Permit' Cases

James Riccard, Prevention and Training officer for the N. H. Forestry Department was prosecutor for the State. After pleading guilty, she was given a $100 fine, with $50 suspended, and a 60 days suspended sentence in the house of correction. McGuirk instructed the local police to issue a mitamus should a similar offense occur.

One case was heard at the regular session with Associate Justice John A. Edgerly presiding. Gerald Matts of Portsmouth was charged by Conservation Officer Carl Akerley of Portsmouth with taking clams from Great Bay without having first obtained a permit. Matts was fined $30.

The complaint was issued by Merlon A. Weller, District Fire Warden of Windham, N. H.

St. Mary's CYO will present a one act play entitled "Mooncalf Mugford", next Tuesday, May 3, at 7:15 in St. Mary's school hall. Our CYO entry will be competing against three other parishes in this area who will also present their one act play in the school hall next Tuesday. Those parishes being represented are as follows. St. Mary's of Newmarket, St. Thomas More of Durham and St. Catherines and Immaculate Conception of Portsmouth.

The play which wins Tuesday will then have the opportunity of competing in the CYO state finals to be held May 8th in Dover.

St. Mary's entry "Mooncalf Mugford" is under the direction of Miss Marcel Houle. The members of the CYO who are in the cast are Marsha Jordan, Joce Albee, Jacqueline Marden, John LaBranche and Douglas Sklarski.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these four fine plays.

Representatives of several local organizations met Tuesday night in the courtroom of the town hall with Hamilton Putnam, Executive Secretary of the N. H. Medical Society to discuss the possibility of obtaining the services of an additional doctor in Newmarket.

The movement began in January when the Fraternal Order of Eagles petitioned the Board of Selectmen to investigate such a possibility.

NEWMARKET PREPARING FOR 'OPERATION ALERT'

Newmarket is one of the more than 50 towns and cities in New Hampshire that will participate in "Operation Alert 1960." The National Civil Defense test to be conducted May 3-5.

Although public participation will be confined to a 15-minute alert period, staff problems will be worked out by the governor and his Civil Defense staff throughout the entire three-day period.

The operation will begin with the yellow warning at approximately 2 p.m. May 3, at which time all radio and television stations will go off the air and the Conelrad radio broadcasting system will go into effect.

The red alert test will start at approximately 3 p.m. at which time the "take cover" signal will be sounded. At that time, all traffic will be stopped and the streets will be cleared. On the white alert the "all clear" signal, normal activities will be resumed.

At the first warning, the state government will evacuate Concord and will operate from the alternate State Headquarters at the Tilton School for Boys. It will remain there for as long as is necessary for the purposes of the exercises.

The exercise has been planned by a small planning staff. The members of that staff alone know what will take place during the three days. Civil Defense units, as well as the public, will get information in exactly the same manner they would get it in case of a real attack.

No one knows where the "bombs" will strike. Auxiliary police will be stationed at points designated by C. D. Director George Hauschel. A thermonuclear attack could kill more than 25 per cent of our population unless we are prepared, Hauschel said.

This exercise is a once-a-year thing. It is a drill and readiness test designed to prepare the public for a real attack. Through exercises such as these, the survival of this country and its population can be insured.

C. D. Chairman George Hauschel and John Twardus of the Board of Selectmen visited local industries Wednesday to secure the cooperation of these key areas. As a result, it was announced that the Macallen Company has already organized its own CD unit and will participate; the Gallant Mfg. Co has a committee of 6 representatives, 3 from each shift; Sam Smith Shoe Co. has appointed 3 men; the Rockingham Shoe has assigned 3 workers and the Claremont Wood Heel has appointed 2 to work in this capacity.

Trustees, Edward Marcotte, Edward Brideau and Henry LeBranche. Adjutant Quartermaster, John Twardus.

At that time announcement was made by National Comm. Charles MacCarthy of the appointment of John Twardus to the post of National Aide de Camp from the New England district.

Local Hair Stylist Purchases Sawyer Mills Beauty Shoppe

Norman and Lillian Langlois, owners of Lillians Beauty Salon on North Main street, Newmarket, and Norman's Hair Styling Salon on Main street, Durham, announce the purchase of the Beauty Shoppe at Sawyer Mills, Dover. The transaction will become effective May 1st.

He is a graduate of the Mary Fazio Beauty School in Lawrence, Mass., and is an expert in hair styling who studies under Leon Amendola of New York City each season to maintain his

Mr. Putnam explained that Newmarket is one of 21 such towns in the state seeking additional medical help. These range from cities of 15,000 to smaller hamlets of 1,000 population. He displayed letters of inquiry from young doctors just completing their internship, to the practitioner with several years of specialized experience. Each was seeking information regarding the practicability of establishing a practice in New Hampshire, demonstrating the fact that in addition to towns seeking adequate medical coverage, doctors from other parts of the continental US are giving some thought to the possibility of a profitable practice in this area.

He also noted that the desirable ratio of residents per doctor (838), recently has been revised to a much higher number.

Putnam exemplified the clinic type set-up as the ideal trend in medicine, that in which the patient comes to the doctor, as compared with the doctor going out to the patient.

The chief encouragement offered was that when in late June prospective applicants are available, the N. H. Society will notify the Newmarket Board of Selectmen, and in any event Newmarket will be like the other 20 towns "waiting for another doctor".

Attending were representatives of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the Newmarket Board of Selectmen, Polish American Citizens Club, Robert G. Durgin Post American Legion and Newmarket Women's Club.

skill and knowledge of current trends in advanced hair styling.

Mrs. Langlois is the owner of Lillians Beauty Salon, which offers expert permanenting. She is a graduate of the Lawrence Academy of Beauty Culture, Lawrence, Mass., and has had 14 years experience as a beautician.

The newest Langlois branch at Sawyer Mills will offer the many expert services customers have enjoyed under Langlois management and will offer hair coloring, permanenting and custom coiffuring. It will be open Wed., Thurs. and Fri. until 10:00 p.m. for the convenience of walk-in patrons.

Through The Years . . .

More Adventures of Henry Tufts

When Hen was home one day on one of his rare visits, he met a friend and she told him she was shocked at some of his exploits and that he better mend his ways. He said, "I bet I could steal the shirt right off your back before you knew it."

The lady was highly indignant. This friend of his had a fine flock of geese which she let run all day but at night she put them in a pen right under her chamber window, which was on the first floor, so if anyone came in the night they would make such a racket she would immediately wake.

One evening around midnight Tufts came quietly up to the house, and then jumped into the pen and the geese set up an awful squaking. The lady put her head out of the window and Hen quick as a wink grabbed her shirt and pulled it over her head before she had a chance to say anything.

Tufts was not feeling well and was advised by some of his friends to visit the Indians in Sudbury, Canada, to help regain his health. He took their advice and started out.

After many and repeated efforts he reached the Pigwacket country, where he rested a few days and then started for the Indian encampment 30 miles away. He finally procured the company of some English hunters part of the way. When he reached the Indian encampment several Indians came out to welcome him. He didn't understand a word of their language but some Indians were found who understood English and he told them he was sick and had come to them to be cured.

They would be very glad to receive him if their chief agreed. They gave him a bed of bear skins and he slept well. The next day Hen was taken to the chief, whose name was Swanson. He gave Tufts a very cordial welcome and permission to stay as long as he choose. He also advised Hen to see Mollie Occut, at that time the great Indian doctress, to superintend the recovery of his health.

Hen went immediately to see Mollie. She gave him a large variety of roots, herbs and barks. The doctress came every day to see him, each time bringing a new medicine. He regained his health in about two months, thanks to Mollie.

He began traveling from place to place to visit the Indian settlements. The entire tribe which he was visiting, consisted of seven hundred Indians. He learned all he could about herbs and barks from Mollie and the Indians.

They had some queer customs. Their nuptial rites were few and simple. As soon as the parties were fully concluded upon the match and the relatives had given their consent, it was customary for the bridegroom to go and throw a deer's leg into the bride's tent, after which she was wont to throw an ear of corn into his. These solemnities were intended as symbolic of the appropriate duties of each and when duly performed, the marriage was legally consummated.

When they lose a friend or relative by death their grief and lamentations are great and unfeigned. After they have carried the corpse to the grave, they lament over it a while with loud complaints and howlings, also with extraordinary gestures and violent contortions of the body. This over, they place the deceased in the grave with his body in an erect posture, wrapped in a blanket and dressed out as usual. They then put his fusil into his arms, his pipe into his mouth and deposit by his side a sufficient quantity of tobacco, powder, balls, steel, tinder and provisions.

Tufts remained with his Indian friends nearly three years, after which he started for home.

When the Revolutionary War broke out, Tufts enlisted in Capt. Clark's company for two months. He marched to Portsmouth and was employed in repairing and building forts. After that, his desertions were as frequent as his enlistments. He was kept busy dodging the military authorities.

He spent six weeks as a physician in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. One day he decided he better return home. At the end of his first days travel he arrived at an inn called the Stone Tavern. He entered the place and asked the landlady for a night's lodging and supper. She began hustling around preparing supper and Hen was much puzzled at the behavior of the landlady. He was very busy securing the outer doors of the house and he noticed the windows had been strongly fastened previous to his arrival.

Hen commenced to fell very frightened as he knew something was wrong. The only persons at present in the room besides himself were the landlady and a woman guest. He looked at the woman to see if she was afraid but she didn't seem to be. Supper was ready by this time, but he felt so uneasy he left his seat and commenced walking around the room and while doing so he cast his eyes towards the opening of a door which had been left ajar and saw in another partment two white men and a negro loading their guns. In a minute or two more, the landlady came and stood in the entry with an ax in his hand.

Hen was terrified and he saw no way of escape. The hostess then called them to supper. The woman guest helped herself to the food, which consisted of cold meat and potatoes. The meat had an appearance so extremely odd that Henry decided it must be human flesh. He sat there in silent astonishment without attempting to swallow a mouthful. At last he heard several people talking quite loudly up the road. Hen then said to the landlady he almost forgot to tell her that he was requested by a sergeant with seven or eight men to ask her to prepare supper immediately. They did not wish to be detained as they were in quest of a deserter which they have tracked this way.

The landlady then ordered all the doors opened and asked her husband to help her get supper for eight men. Hen then told her he knew her crew were murderers and that they all, especially herself, would pay heavily for their wickedness. He then jumped out of the door and seeing no soldiers near, made off toward home as soon as possible.

It was afterwards discovered that the people at the Stone House were Tories and that the same night of Hen's visit they fled the Stone House bag and baggage, and that some of the soldiers searched the house and found signs of the murder of several persons.

In 1789, Tufts deserted from his regiment at West Point and spent the night at the Spencer Tavern in the town of Charemont and there met a British agent, who offered him a chance to make some money by putting into circulation counterfeit money. Congress had offered a paper medium to pay off the soldiers. The British agent's plan was to put in circulation counterfeit bills to discredit the new national currency.

Tufts exchanged all the silver he had for five thousand dollars in counterfeit bills. He then bought an expensive horse and a new outfit of citizens clothes for himself. He bought a store of fine things and sent them to his latest wife, Sally Judd.

In the spring of 1793, Tufts got into serious trouble. He says, "I bought a silver table-spoon and five silver teaspoons which turned out to have been stolen, so I was tried for burglary, a capital offense." He was committed to Ipswich jail. His trial took place in the fall of 1793. Twice the jury disagreed. On the third trial they bought in a verdict of guilty. Tufts was sentenced to be hanged at Ipswich jail, August 13, 1795.

Great efforts were made for his reprieve. It was not until the hour of execution that the order came from Governor Samuel Adams for his reprieve. Three thousand persons had gathered to witness the tragic spectacle. At the petition of his normal wife Nabby, Governor Adams commuted his sentence to imprisonment for life.

He was sent to Castle Island where he served five years and then transferred to Salem Jail from which he escaped the next day.

His wife Abigail was a fine woman. She and her children lived in Limington where she received Henry Tufts into her home and cared for him in his old age. He died in his eighty-third year, January 31, 1891.

that through our charity this building could be realized.

This, however, is but one of the Catholic Charities accomplishments. The Institution for children, lovingly administered by our Sisters, the Social Service Bureau with its complete adoption service and Foster Home program, the Catholic Youth Organization, the Summer Camps for Boys and Girls — all have directed the lives of thousands of our youngsters toward good citizenship founded on love of God.

St. Mary's Parish of Newmarket can be especially proud of their previous record for the Catholic Charities of this Diocese. We are hopeful that this year we will meet the response generously in support of this truly holy cause.

Personals

Ralph Granger, Jr., left Sunday to spend a week touring New York City and Washington, D.C., with two other Oyster River High School students, Lyle Smith and Burton Curley, Jr. The trip is the 5th annual Youth Citizenship Tour sponsored by the N. H. Council on World Affairs — a 4-H Youth Extension.

Ted Gooch, local contractor, has added a new and interesting piece of machinery to his equipment. It is an International Crawler with a 4-way skid bucket and is one of the few in this area. With this one piece of equipment an operator can bulldoze, clamshell, load or dig.

Due to a serious operation and prospects of a long convalescence, Willie Labonte was recently forced to sell out his entire dairy herd. Mr. Labonte and his wife, Marianne, have been farming for thirty years at their tidy little farm on Lee Hook road. We would like to extend our sincerest best wishes to Willie for a safe and sound recovery. We are sure that he would appreciate cards from his many friends. His address is in care of The Portsmouth Hospital.

Mr. John Day, former Oyster River principal, his wife and two sons from New Hyde Park, N. Y. who spent a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Trefethen of Rye, took time off to visit with friends in Durham last week. They renewed acquaintances at Oyster River School and visited Mrs. Ralph Granger and her kindergarteners at Craft Cottage.

Mrs. Philip Sanborn, one of the area's best known collie breeders, attended the two day 6th annual Collie College which was held last weekend at Nashua, N. H. Collie breeders and handlers throughout the Northeastern state were on hand to hear such well known authorities as Will Judy of "Dog World" fame and Jack Warren, retired collie handler speak on breeding and grooming and discuss ideas on general management and handling in and out of the show ring.

Bishop John T. Dallas, retired Episcopal bishop of N. H., is a patient at the Exeter Hospital.

We are happy to welcome back home to Lee Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wiggin of Wad-ley's Falls. The Wiggins spent the winter at Lake Penasoffkee in Florida.

Joe Dixx's Sport Corner

By Richard Schanda

Last week the Sports Corner reported various sightings of deer in the Ash Swamp and Epping road area. Now it looks as if the deer have herded up and if you would like to see a swell show, drive down the Ash Swamp road to the Sewall farm just before dark. The herd numbers about 7 deer and from a distance I would say there are 5 full grown does and two yearlings.

One important thing to remember is to respect the fences and fields. The ground is wet and soft and ruts up quite easily. Also, try not to frighten the deer as this will scatter the herd and could result in premature births.

You know the old saying "a word to the wise is sufficient." So here is a chance to profit by another's misfortune.

Two friends of mine took off for a session of trout fishing. They operate out of a canoe so they tied the boat on top of their pickup truck. These two men use ropes daily in their work but they failed to check the rope for weak spots. You can guess what happened next. The Bow rope parted as they drove along by Carpenters greenhouse and the wind lifted the canoe out of the truck and dropped it into the road. But for a fibre glassed bottom, the boat would have been smashed to kindling wood. So check your ropes carefully for rot and broken strands. By the way, they caught 5 trout and a case of nerves.

The first day of trout season opened with its usual gray skies and cold weather. However, most of the fishermen who tried the brooks and ponds came up with limit or near limits. The hottest pond in this area was Barbadoes Pond in Dover. Oyster River and Lucas Pond provided some nice trout on Saturday morning. On Sunday the action dropped off somewhat. The water is warming up readily and with a little nice weather conditions should improve.

One old time trout fisherman once told me that brook trout will not bite as well on bright windy days. He claimed that the wind caused shadows of limbs to dance over the surface of the brooks. This tends to frighten trout under the banks. He also said that if you should try trout after a thunder storm, head up stream, for he found that trout seemed to move up stream directly after a storm. He figured that nature must warn a trout of the possibility of high water and the trout moved up stream to avoid this possibility.

Woodchuck hunting will start shortly with the 'chuck' providing a sometimes necessary sport. Chuck hole have made many a farmer turn gray. In the old days, cows and horses stepped into these holes and many ended up with broken limbs.

One thing to remember is to bury the chuck in his hole. This will provide a double service by getting rid of a chuck and also filling his burrow which should please the land owner.

Women Bowlers Hold Banquet

The Womens Bowling League held their end-of-the-season banquet Friday, April 22nd, at Ye Cocke and Kettle in Seabrook, with 45 members attending. Mrs. Jennie Schultz, outgoing president, awarded trophies.

Receiving honors were Miss Rita LaBranche who received a 1st place trophy for high single, high triple and high average; Mrs. Toni Albee, high triple 2nd place and Mrs. Elaine Puchlopek, high single 2nd place. A trophy was presented to the 1st place winning team,

LITTLE LEAGUE NEWS

By Joe Dixx

The Little League meeting held at the town hall last Monday, April 25th, was well attended with 25 members present.

First on the order of business involved the proposed raffle. It was decided to issue the tickets at the next meeting, May 9th. It was also decided to display the 1st prize, a boy or girls bike, in Barney Turcotte's store window.

The 2nd item brought up for discussion was the insurance on the ball field. It was decided to obtain year-round coverage on the Little League ball field. This would cover all damages and will be purchased from J. B. Griffin Insurance Agency.

Next was a discussion on the condition of the field, the conclusion being that the field should not be used until the grass is up and the grounds have dried out.

The 4th item was to form a group to rake, grade and seed down the field. Jerry Hamel and Francis Brady have donated the seed. This was picked up Tuesday and raked in. About next Monday, it should start showing up. Grounds keeping is a tough job at best and we can ease the job by keeping our eager young ball players off the field.

Item 5 involved a discussion on the loss and gain of team members. The 4 teams lost a total of 25 boys and gained 42 members. It was decided to keep the old 1959 teams intact to allow the new boys to learn the ropes from the veteran little leaguers.

Teams will be drawn up and released for publication at the next meeting which will be held on May 9th at the town hall.

A special meeting will be held at the town hall on May 2nd at 7:00 p.m. The Pony League officials want to meet with all the boys who are interested in the new Pony League being formed. You boys need not bring your parent but they are welcome to come along with you.

the Deadwoods, Mrs. Irene Vidler, captain, Mrs. Kay Malek, Libby Zych, Mrs. Toni Malek and Mrs. Rita Eddington.

A second trophy was presented to the runners-up, the Go-Getters, Mrs. Joy Kimball, captain, Mrs. Gert Shea, Mrs. Helen Levesque, Mrs. Margie Bickford and Mrs. Christine Small. Mrs. Schultz also presented gifts to Mrs. Clara Homiak and Mrs. Norma Otash, treasurer and secretary during the past bowling season.

Officers were elected to serve when the league resumes play in September. President Mrs. Joy Kimball, Secretary Mrs. Norma Otash and Treasurer Mrs. Jennie Schultz.

Serving on the banquet committee were Mrs. Helen Sharples, Mrs. Gert Shea and Mrs. Theresa LeBeau. Trophy committee; Miss Rita LaBranche, Mrs. Marlene Filion and Mrs. Kay Huggins.

Anyone interested in joining the league may do so by contacting any of the above officers.
