Worshippers Throng Easter Sun. Services

An unusually large audience enjoyed the special Easter worship service of the Community church last Sunday morning. The pastor, Rev. Chesley Lantz, was assisted in conducting the devotional program by Rev. Louis Ellms, who offered the morning prayer.

Special music was provided by a trio composed of Mrs. Leona Foster, Delbert Ellison and Mrs. Valada Carpenter; the Junior choir, composed of Peggy Cook, Peggy West, Joyce West, Catherine Nelson, Sally Barker, Bettina Dalton, Nellie Halko, Lorraine Marshall, and Johanne Russell. Instrumental accompaniment was furnished by Benjamin Kendrigan at the violin and Mrs. Grace Upham at the organ.

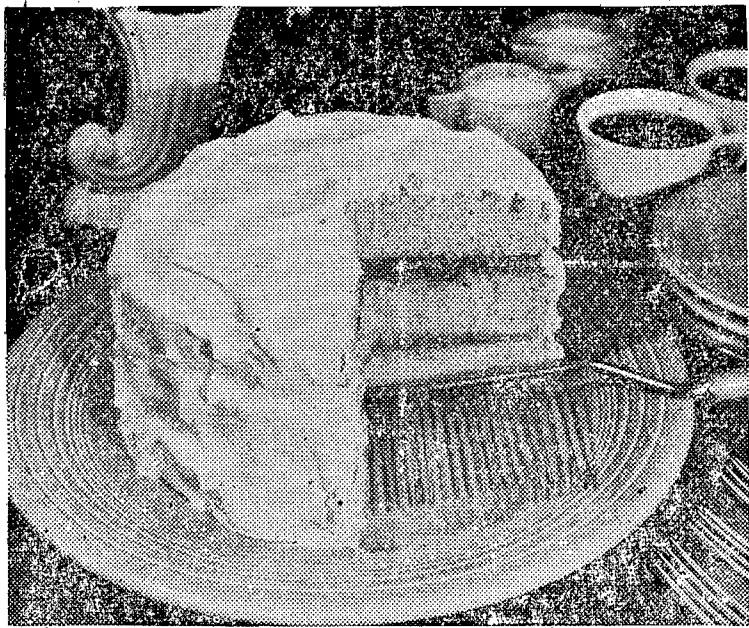

The sermon theme was entitled, "The Assurance of Immortality," the text being taken from the book of Job, where the question is raised, "If a man die, shall he live again?" The pastor insisted that the assurance of immortality is based upon a family of ideas including the aspiration of the human heart, the demands of justice, the Easter fact, and the nature and character of God.

He continued to say that in any field of endeavor we always accept the judgment of the expert and that Jesus is the expert in the field of religion. He lived successfully He conquered death. We should accept his teaching when he said, "I am the resurrection and the life."

Rev. Mr. Lantz closed his remarks with a consideration of the practical value of the doctrine of immortality, stating that it is a great comfort in sorrow; it helps us to be humble and it should be an everlasting encouragement to moral and spiritual attainment.

NO-POINT LOW-POINT DESSERT

A cake made with lard is a patriotic choice for dessert because it conforms with the government's request that No-Point Low-Point foods be used as often as possible. This factor means that families need not wait for post-war plenty to enjoy a good cake. This white lard cake with its marmalade frosting is a delicious treat that can be enjoyed right now.

Seaman's Holiday

Do you remember the old story about the man who entered a restaurant, asked the waitress to bring him some warm orange juice, a hard-boiled egg, burnt toast and cold coffee, and requested her to sit opposite him and nag him while he ate his breakfast, because he was homesick and wanted to feel at home?

Well that old gag came to life again when I visited the Seaman's Church Institute in New York yesterday and talked to a bronzed old sailor from Manchester, England, whom I found reading the comics in a corner of the Institute's reading room.

He told me that of all the comic characters, he liked Jiggs and Maggie best.

"When I'm particularly lonely," he said, "I find that reading Maggie and Jiggs lifts my spirits. I'm right back at home again."

"My wife not only looks like Maggie, she acts like her. She's forever nagging me, and while she hasn't actually thrown any dishes at me, I wouldn't be a bit surprised if she started to any day. She's got Maggie's social-climbing ideas too."

Probably that is the secret of the great attraction the comics have for those merchantmen when they come back to shore from all over the world, for the sailor boys stationed in the Pacific and the soldiers wherever they are who ask for the comics by every mail and rush for them as eagerly as for their letters from their own families. To them the comics are home. They represent their own families and their own way of life.

"Blondie is my favorite," said an old sailor who was relaxing in the Seaman's Church Institute. "He's a sailor, and I'm a sailor. I've seen many a guy like him and I get loads of good laughs out of him."

Thomas Carolyn, an English sailor, is a Skippy fan, who has been going to sea for thirty-two years. "Skippy is a lot like my son was when he was a kid. Reading about Skippy reminds me of his early days when he got himself into plenty of mischief."

A young Irish seaman who was too bashful to give his name, has taken Blondie to his heart. "Ever since I see her in the comics, I think of my own wife. She wears cute clothes just like that when she is in our kitchen, and I like her way Blondie brings up her kids."

Miroslav Cap, a Russian, is still carrying the torch for a girl he saw on a bus not long ago, and who looked just Tillie the Toiler.

Nineteen-year-old Kenneth Harris gets a big kick out of the Katzenjammer Kids, because back home in Minneapolis, he and his brother used to pull the same tricks that Hans and Fritz do, and like them, they got many a padding from their Dad.

E. I. Hoffman, a husky American merchant seaman, has practically "doped" little Annie Rooney, because he was an orphan himself and knows how it feels to get kicked around.

There were two bashful young Brazilian sailors from Rio de Janeiro enjoying the comics in the Institute's lounge. They studied English in Rio de Janeiro and found the comics a darn good way to study up on the language and also to familiarize themselves with American ways. One of them, Jose Frucht, has practically fallen in love with Blondie, and if she should ever divorce Dagwood, he wouldn't mind marrying her himself, he said.

All the men to whom I talked at the Seaman's Institute agreed on one thing. The comics are a lifeline to them, and when they go to sea, it is just like saying goodbye to their friends, and when they find American comics in Cairo or Melbourne, in London or Murmansk, it's just like a reunion with these friends.

Wherever they go, say the sailors, the comics are home to them.

THE GRANITE STATE GARDENER

by J. H. Hepler

SEED VARIETIES

The county agent and I were looking at a grocery store's collection of vegetable seeds in Northern New Hampshire the other day and I made the remark that I wished the company would allow me to choose the varieties that go into these displays. The storekeeper asked me, if I belonged to the company. I said "No, my job was merely an advisory one on gardens." Then he asked me to what varieties I objected. Most of them were long season, warm-weather vegetables.

For example, all the watermelons and muskmelons were so late in maturing that they were absolutely valueless for Northern New Hampshire.

All lima beans were varieties that would not even mature in Durham. Then, the county agent pointed to packages of Stowell's Evergreen Sweet corn. As a matter of fact, Stowell's Evergreen is the most largely planted sweet corn in New Hampshire, but it is planted by farmers for silage purposes and never harvested for corn.

Probably the seed companies find it impossible to distinguish between Northern, Central, and Southern New Hampshire in making up these collections. The lists are really made up from the sales of the previous years, rather than by adaptation to local conditions.

I found the same difficulty with plant growers in Carroll County. The variety California Wonder pepper was grown by practically all of them. When the California Wonder pepper matures it certainly is the world's finest pepper, but I can only get fruit from it one year in five in my garden, and I have given up trying. Market gardeners around Boston would not think of planting this variety as a commercial kind. A second variety commonly grown is King of the North. This is an earlier maturing variety, not so early or as good as the Waltham Beauty, the Italian Sweet, the Earl of Glen, or the Merrimack Wonder.

A favorite variety of tomatoes in this northern section is the Rutgers. Again, this is probably the world's fine tomato but it is late in maturing. One of the plant growers told me that people complained about this variety not bearing, but he said it was not his fault because these tomatoes would bear in his garden. In other words, there is a great deal of difference between the professional grower, with every advantage of soil and fertilizer and growing methods at his command, and the amateur gardener, who often has to grow his tomatoes under very unsuitable conditions.

4-Her's To Enhance Farm Site Values By Beautifying Grounds

Surroundings of numerous farm homes throughout this state will take on a new and attractive appearance this year with plantings of native and other flowers, shrubs and trees, repaired houses and barns, repaired fences, and windbreaks. This noteworthy work that enhances farm property values will be accomplished by club boys and girls participating in the 94th national 4-H home grounds beautification activity, which is conducted by the extension service.

Outstanding records in this activity will receive recognition from Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, Chicago horticultural enthusiast, in the form of gold filled medals to county winners, a gold watch to the state champion, and trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next December to the eight highest scoring participants.

O glorious hope and blessed assurance, "It is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." Christians rejoice in secret, they have a beauty hidden from the world. —Mary Baker Eddy.

Victory Garden Has Stew-pondous Possibilities

Home grown vegetables require no ration points but that its only one of the many inducements which should encourage more victory gardens in 1944, says Jessie Alice Cline, home economist. Vegetables make some mighty fine meat extender dishes and plenty of home grown vegetables in the larder assure more satisfying meals all year long.

For the duration meat stews have become meat and vegetable stews to stretch meat flavor. Other vegetable-extended meat meals are: "Boiled Dinners" with corned beef or ham hocks and vegetables; meat and vegetable salads; meat and vegetable casseroles; and fritters or croquettes with cooked meat and vegetables.

Victory Garden Stew

1 1/2 pounds stew meat
3 tablespoons drippings
Water
1 large rutabaga
6 medium potatoes
1 pound green beans
Salt and pepper
Brown meat in drippings. Season. Cover with water and simmer about one and one-half hours. Add rutabaga which has been cut in sixths. In 15 minutes, add unpeeled potatoes and whole green beans. Season and simmer until vegetables are tender, about 30 minutes. Arrange meat and vegetables on large serving platter. Thicken the gravy with flour and water and serve in a separate bowl. Serves 6.

Jersey Pork Pie

The additional servings from a roast which has provided the meat for dinner one day can often be extended in a variety of ways for several meals. Jessie Alice Cline, home economist, suggests that eggs may be used to extend left-over sliced roast pork in this delicately flavored Jersey Pork Pie.

Jersey Pork Pie

Sliced roast pork
Hard cooked eggs
Minced onion
Powdered sage
Salt and pepper

Arrange slices of cold roast pork in the bottom of a casserole. Season with minced onion, powdered sage, pepper and salt. Over this place a layer of hard cooked eggs. Repeat until dish is nearly full. Pour over a cup of left-over gravy or cream sauce. Top with pastry or biscuit dough, and bake in a hot oven 400 degrees F. until pastry is done, about 20 minutes.

Four-Legged Pulpwood Producer

Farmer Harry E. Jordan of East Eddington, Me., has solved his manpower problem in the woods in a novel way. He uses his trained Newfoundland dog, "Chum", to haul pulpwood from his woodland. "Chum" pulls this homemade sled, which has a capacity of one-eighth of a cord, eight times from dawn to dusk, thus hauling a cord a day. Jordan already has produced 50 cords of pulpwood with the aid of his four-legged helper.

Sunday Is Cook's Day Of Rest

Every woman who "keeps house" deserves her day of rest from cooking on Sunday, according to Jessie Alice Cline, home economist. Putting around the kitchen is relaxing for some people but on Sunday most women would rather relax in an easy chair and read the Sunday paper or chat with the family.

Plans can be made to have that type of a Sunday by making preparations Saturday afternoon or Friday evening.

Prunes or some other stewed fruit can be prepared ahead of time for breakfast better than oranges or grapefruit which lose vitamin C when cut or squeezed and stored overnight.

If the family insists on wheat takes the dry ingredients and lard can be mixed whenever there is time the day before. While the ingredients are close at hand the quantities needed for a hot bread for dinner or supper might be measured too. Then on Sunday only liquid need be added—a minimum of fuss and bother.

Occasionally sweet rolls or coffee cake from the bakery might be served for an even easier morning meal.

Breakfast

Stewed Prunes

Ready-to-Serve Cereal Milk
Wheat Cakes Syrup

Coffee

It is usually best to plan to have dinner at mid-day on Sunday, says Miss Cline. With that schedule family members are more free to follow their own plans for the rest of the day. A roast is probably the easiest main course. There is only the effort needed to place the meat on a rack in an open roasting pan, insert the meat thermometer (if one is available) and place it in a slow or moderate oven.

Wash the potatoes the night before and on Sunday bake or boil them in their jackets. That saves time and the potatoes retain more vitamins when cooked that way too. Vegetables may be washed and cleaned the evening before too. These tasks consume time, whenever they are done, but why waste time in the kitchen on the only day of the week that the family is together?

A day or two before the weekend make a molded salad or plan an easy head lettuce salad for Sunday. Mayonnaise may be thinned the evening before, too.

Almost any dessert can be made in advance so a wide range of choices is possible.

Potatoes in Jackets Asparagus
Molded Apple Salad

Corn Meal Muffins Jelly
Orange Pudding Coffee

Supper should be simplest of all. A ready-to-eat meat platter could be served every Sunday evening without monotony for there is a wide variety of meats to choose from. Any mixture of cooked vegetables or fresh vegetables might be tossed together for a mixed vegetable salad in lettuce.

1944 Price-Support For Potatoes Listed

DURHAM, N. H., April 11—Basic prices for Irish potatoes in New Hampshire in 1944 will be at the following levels per 100 pounds U. S. No. 1 grade potatoes in new bags, sacked and loaded f. o. b. carrier in carlots, announces J. Ralph Graham, chairman of the state AAA committee, in referring to the recently outlined War Food Administration price-support program: for September $2.25, for October $2.30, for November $2.35, and for December $2.45.

For 85 per cent U. S. No. 1 quality, 25 cents is deducted from the U. S. No. 1 price. For U. S. commercial grade, 40 cents is deducted. For U. S. No. 1 grade, size B, or U. S. No. 2 grade, 1 7-8 inches minimum, 50 per cent of the price for the U. S. No. 1 grade is deducted.

The WFA points out that commodity loans to producers, associations of producers, and certified dealers which will be made available from about September 14 through December 15, supplemented by diversion operations, will constitute the only price-support method to be employed for 1944 late-crop storage potatoes. On account of less services required of the potato seller, Commodity Credit Corporation loans will be at a lower rate than the basic prices announced above.

The War Food Administration emphasizes that growers and shippers are expected to assume their normal responsibility for the sale of their potatoes. Price-support programs are aimed only at establishing "a floor" under prices to growers and are not intended to disrupt or replace regular marketing operations. Since it is impracticable to assure potato growers the benefits of this price-support program except where there are established storage or marketing facilities, growers in planting potatoes should be sure that such facilities are available.

The schedule of loan prices will be announced soon, says Mr. Graham.

EDITORIAL

During the past few weeks the reading public of this newspaper has declined tremendously in its contributions of news items. With the exception of these two or three weeks the public has responded to our news appeals with gratifying results.

Clear, interesting news items are the main purpose of any up-and-coming paper. This, coupled with advertisements and feature stories, make up the modern journal.

As you pick up this copy of the "Newmarket News," you will probably remark to yourself or to a friend, "There's no news in this thing . . . as usual!" Did you ever stop to think: "Couldn't I help to make it better?"

Couldn't you help to make it better! Couldn't you rid it of Rochester news, and of dull, uninteresting "filler" material? Only YOU, the reader, hold the answer to this question.

It is absolutely impossible for any one person, myself in this case, to gather all the weekly occurrences in a community of 3,000 people. Won't you help me out? Won't you help toward making this paper a truly "NEWMARKET News?"

Think it over. I'll be waiting at the Bouras Ice Cream Bar for your answer.

Newmarket POLISH CLUB

Notes

The shortness of this column is due to the fact that club happenings have been few. The foremost reason is perhaps due to the absence on Monday evenings of our erstwhile news contributor, Eddie Sczizik.

The club rooms were closed all day Sunday because of the Easter holiday.

Pfc. George Hamel, Sgt. Chester Kruczek, Frank Homiak and Fred Pelczar, recently visited the club.

John J. Kustra, who is doing an excellent job as both club and town treasurer, went to Manchester Monday to report for induction in the United States Army. Further details will be given in next week's column.

The addresses of two of our service members have changed. Their new addresses are:

S-Sgt. Al Puchlopek, A. S. N. 31013683, Hq. Co., 1144th Engr., C. Gp. Camp McCoy, Wis.

Stanley J. Sopel, S 1-C; M. F. B., Squadron 7, c-o Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, Cal.

High School News

A series of three national achievement tests were administered to high school pupils this week by Austin J. McCaffrey, the headmaster. They are: Foust-Schorling test of functional thinking in mathematics, Grades 11 and 12; Ruch-Cossman biology achievement tests, Grades 11 and 12; Glenn-Walton chemistry achievement tests, Grade 10.

Headmaster McCaffrey announces that the spring physical fitness program is to commence Monday.

The local schools will enjoy a week of vacation this month, commencing on April 24 and ending April 28.

Marchand Leaves For Air Corps Training

Paul H. Marchand, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henri G. Marchand of 27 Cedar street, left this morning for preliminary training as an Aviation Cadet in the Army Air Forces. He reported to Fort Devens, Mass., and will later be sent to an AAF Basic Training Center.

Private Marchand was graduated from Newmarket High school in 1943 and was employed by the Portsmouth Navy Yard prior to his enlistment.

Local Sailor In England Hospital

Wayne I. Russell, Seaman 1-c, U. C. Navy, has notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Russell of 11 Cedar street, that he is receiving treatment in a hospital somewhere in England. He was unable to state the reason, however.

His parents had not received word from him for over two months before this communication arrived.

Extension Service News

Local Home Demonstration Leaders in Rockingham County have been doing splendid work reports Ruth G. Stimson, County Home Demonstration Agent.

Recently Mrs. Clarence Dickason and Mrs. Gordon Langill of Chester and Mrs. Herbert Crocker, Jr., and Mrs. Harlan Weeks of Candia gave demonstrations before their groups on how to pack a lunch box. They offered many suggestions for sandwich fillings, since they are the largest problem in wartime. Displays were given of a good home packed lunch and a poor one. The audience had an opportunity to discuss home grown foods for lunches and ask questions.

Canning has attracted attention in Newington, Plaistow, and Chester. Local leaders: Mrs. Frank Hammond and Mrs. Beth Rand are in charge of the Newington meeting—April 20—at the Town Hall—from 10 to 4 p. m. Mrs. Alfred Chase and Miss Alma Watts will teach the Plaistow group on April 18th at the home of Mrs. Merle Cheney. In Chester Mrs. Farish Lewis, Mrs. Austin Hunt, and Mrs. Horace Baldwin have been in charge of the activities.

In North Londonderry local women have been helping each other construct dress forms after a recent meeting with Agent.

In Salem Mrs. Ronald Sherburne, Nutrition Chairman, and the women in the Home Demonstration Group recently sponsored a Soy Bean meeting. The audience took advantage of the chance to taste many soybean products. In North Londonderry Mrs. Amos Lash will demonstrate on Soy Beans before the Naborly Group.

In Chester Mrs. George Kimball and Mrs. Clarence Dickason held a Conservation of Home Equipment meeting. They showed the ladies how to detect a defective wire with a trouble lamp, how to splice a cord, how to fix a plug, replace a fuse, and sharpen knives. Everyone present said that she learned something that she never knew about or understood before. Bulletins on the care and simple repair of equipment were distributed.

Taking Manpower Census

The War Manpower Commission through the local office of the United States Employment Service is this week conducting an employment census in Dover and some of the smaller towns in the area, including Rochester and Exeter.

The growing shortage of workers in this section of New Hampshire makes it imperative that the War Manpower Commission know as early as can be determined the reserves of manpower and manpower that may be drawn on as the war progresses and still more workers are needed in the local war effort.

Help with the United States Employment Service needs between the need for a new workers, right now, the present campaign is a recruitment drive.

The mailing cards are being sent out with a return questionnaire which aims at finding out: (1) how many people living in Dover and nearby towns are gainfully employed and what kind of work they are doing; (2) how many are not employed; and (3) how many of those not employed would be willing to take jobs as a war service when they are really needed.

A mailing questionnaire is desired from both men and women—in fact, from everyone 16 years of age or older—whether they are employed or not. Anyone who does not receive a questionnaire in the mail this week is requested

Landing Force At Cape Gloucester Outguessed Japanese

Pvt. Arthur E. Mielke

(Marine Corps Combat Correspondent)

CAPE GLOUCESTER, New Britain (Delayed)—An old baseball axiom, "Hit 'em where they ain't," was brought into play by the strategists who planned the Marine Corps blitz on this base.

As the Marine combat team assigned to take the air field wound its way along the shore toward this area they came upon the section where the Japs believed we'd land. Here, mile upon mile, were well dug trenches parallel with the shore, interspersed with log-em bedded gun emplacements.

Japs Abandoned Posts

"But we foreg 'em. We came on these rather hastily erected fortifications from the flank, nullifying them. The gun emplacements too, were ineffective in that they had openings to the front and rear only.

Most of the Japs were far-sighted enough to abandon their useless barricades, but the few who sought refuge in the gun emplacement shelters were wiped out almost to a man.

Driver of one of the medium (General Sherman) tanks, Corp. Roy Hall of Confluence, Pa., reported:

"The men up front would see a pillbox up ahead and call back for us.

"We'd just ride up, point our gun down into the opening, and fire." Jap Shells Bounce

The corporal was referring to the 75-millimeter guns which are mounted in the tank's turrets.

"One shot generally killed all the occupants," he said.

The corporal then pointed to three nicks on his monster.

"See those?" he said. "Those are where three of their 75-millimeter shells struck—and bo need right off."

TROPICAL FOOTBALL

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, (Delayed)—Feeling the urge to toss a football, Marines on this island find partially satisfactory substitutes in large coconuts, pieces of logs cut down and tattered at the ends, and ditty bags filled with any kind of trash. The beach, the road, or bivouac area constitutes the playing field.

For Potatoes Listed New Cabbage Has Vitamin C Content

Cabbage, a no-point, low-point food rich in Vitamin C, may be stored in a cool, dry, place for a week without spoiling, says Elizabeth E. Ellis, extension nutritionist at the University of New Hampshire. Cabbage, one of the seven basic foods, contains vitamin A and also some minerals, besides vitamin C.

Cabbage is a time-saver in cooking, and it adds variety and food value to family meals. Less time is needed to wash cabbage than other green vegetables, and it may be cooked in just a few minutes.

Cabbage may be served in an endless variety of ways. Try a cabbage, tomato, and rice casserole with soya, or a crisp salad for lunch, containing potato salad and sliced hard boiled eggs served on shredded cabbage. And another interesting cabbage variation is cabbage stuffed or rolled with meat and soya.

Mrs. Penn Pillsbury of Boston being measured by one of Dr. Hooton's assistants.

Fitting seats to people instead of fitting people to seats...

That's why, in the concourse of the North Station, we are now on the last stretch of the task of measuring 3,000 women and men passengers. This scientific research is being conducted with the cooperation of Dr. E. A. Hooton, Head of the Department of Anthropology at Harvard University and the Heywood-Wakefield Company of Gardner, a seat manufacturer located in New England territory.

This is but one of the many things which the Boston and Maine is now doing, seeking to get ready for the post-war period when we plan to offer the ultimate in comfort for train travel. Many people have complained that present-day coach seats "don't fit me."

Our desire for correctness naturally led us to Dr. Hooton, the recognized authority on the physical characteristics of man. After some preliminary research he told us that before recommending the size of chair that would best fit the most passengers of the train coach of the future, he insisted on statistics. That's why we are measuring people in the North Station.

The job is nearly completed. Those women and men who have been measured to date will be able to say, after the war, "I helped design this comfortable seat!" We know it will be comfortable, too—for from the 3,000 typical measurements we're getting now we shall have data enabling us to give the great majority of our riders a coach seat that really fits!

While you put up—as you so cheerfully have—with the inconveniences which are necessary in our service during wartime, we want you to know that we aren't just "sitting tight" while we continue to move wartime freight and passengers in record-breaking volume.

We are also hard at work in our research efforts to make sure that, come the end of the war, we can offer you equipment such as you never even dreamed of—the kind of equipment predestined to make you want to continue traveling by train!

AND, BY THE WAY—

There's still time for you to participate in this history-making project. Being measured takes only 4 minutes of your time. And most of those who have helped us tell the attendants "It's fun."

Why don't you drop in to the measuring enclosure in the North Station concourse today, or the next time you are in town, and be among the women and men who can say, "I helped design the coach seat of the future."

Incidentally, in the 4 minute measurement you will receive your exact weight and height taken scientifically at no charge.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Matt Doorly Versus the Tomato

Matt Doorly's skin broke out in a rash last week. He finally admitted to Doc Hollister he'd eaten twelve tomatoes in a row just the day before.

"Shucks," said Doc. "That's all that's the matter with you. That kind of eating would turn anybody red."

So now Matt has not only cut out all tomatoes for himself. He's forbidden his family to eat tomatoes. And won't even have them in the house. Says tomatoes are anti-social and ought to be prohibited by law.

Funny how some people rush off to extremes like that. They take a wholesome thing and overdo it till it disagrees with them—or maybe find they don't happen to like it—and then they want it banned for everybody.

From where I sit, folks ought to realize there's a middle ground in everything—a middle ground of moderation on the one hand . . . and tolerance for our neighbors on the other.
