AMERICAN HEROES

By JULIAN OLLENDORFF

EVERY purchaser of a War Bond gives up something to aid his fellowmen with the same spirit that Pfc. William P. Bowes of West Roxbury, Mass., showed in risking his life to save a comrade on a Pacific Island, though in a lesser degree. Though previous attempts to reach three wounded men had failed, Pfc. Bowes crawled through the jungle in the face of intense enemy fire and dragged one of the men 35 yards to cover. The action won him a Silver Star. U. S. Treasury Department

Congress to Probe State Department Diplomacy After Hurley's Blast

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union news analysts, and not necessarily of this newspaper.

U. S. DIPLOMACY: Duplicity Charged

Long under fire for its implementation of American foreign policy in the wake of U. S. victories on the battlefield, the state department was scheduled for congressional investigation following ex-Amb. Patrick Hurley's charge that some of its personnel had worked counter to his efforts to promote the unification of China.

In losing his bombshell on Capitol Hill, Hurley declared that certain professional diplomats were inviting future conflict by siding with the Chinese communist party and the imperialistic bloc of nations in keeping China divided against itself and unable to resist encroachment.

While he worked for a democratic China which could act as stabilizing influence in the Orient, Hurley charged, some state department officials told the Chinese communists that his activities did not reflect the policy of the U. S. and they should not enter into a unified government unless retaining military control.

Agreement to investigate the state department followed the demand of Senator Wherry (Rep., Neb.) for an inquiry to determine whether there was any variance between U. S. foreign policy and the Potsdam declaration and whether the foreign service was interfering with domestic affairs in South America, influencing other countries toward communist government, or clashing with the army and navy over occupation policy.

Meanwhile, Gen. George C. Marshall, ex-chief of staff, prepared to embark upon his duties as special envoy to China in the midst of Chiang Kai-shek's redoubling of efforts to unify the country and open the way for vigorous postwar economic expansion. In announcing his program to modernize the country, Chiang declared the No. 1 goal would be the improvement of transportation to facilitate an exchange of materials between the various regions.

LABOR-INDUSTRY: Meet Lags

Started with high hopes, the labor-industry conference called in Washington, D. C., slowly ground toward its conclusion with indications that no important new machinery would be constructed for the speedy settlement of employee-management disputes.

In seeking orderly procedure in drawing up an original contract, the conferees recommended collective bargaining first, then conciliation, and finally voluntary arbitration. In cases of grievances under existing contracts, the delegates resolved that pacts should incorporate provisions for settlements without resort to strikes, lockouts or other interruptions to production.

As the conference faltered toward its end, with neither side apparently disposed to surrender any of its bargaining advantages, labor-industry representatives approved a proposal to meet for consultation whenever they saw fit.

Although handicapped by an almost complete lack of tools, these German prisoners of war in PW camp at Fowey, England, still managed to turn out this varied collection of toys to help fill Santa's bag for little Britons. The amateur workmen included a former Berlin judge, a doctor from Hamburg and university students.

LABOR: On Defensive

Heretofore on the offensive with its demands for higher wages to maintain high wartime pay, the CIO was suddenly thrown back on the defensive with the Ford Motor company's proposal that the United Automobile workers pay a $5 a day fine for workers involved in unauthorized strikes.

Ford asked for this protection against production losses as officials continued negotiations with the UAW, whose leaders have maintained that the industry can afford 30 per cent pay boosts without raising prices because of large reserves and premises of substantial profits from huge postwar output.

While UAW immediately challenged the effectiveness of a fine in curbing wildcat walkouts, Ford officials insisted that the union could exert sufficient pressure on its locals to prevent unauthorized strikes, slowdowns and controlled production.

Meanwhile, General Motors, reversing a previous stand, agreed to consult with government officials concerning resumption of negotiations with the UAW after the union gave ground in its demands for a 30 per cent wage increase. With the company holding out for a modification of terms, the UAW declared that it would seek no wage increase necessitating a rise in prices.

With the work stoppages in G. M. plants threatening to paralyze practically all of the automobile industry because of its dependence upon G. M. for parts, a further menace to reconversion was posed in the United Steel workers vote for a strike if leaders deemed one necessary to enforce demands for a $2 a day wage raise.

OPA refusal to grant steel manufacturers price increases until the conclusion of the year's operations permits closer study of their profit also has hardened company resistance to the UAW demands. To the union's assertion that the industry could well pay the increase out of alleged "hidden profits," management has replied that government findings have classified the so-called "hidden profits" as reasonable business reserves assuring future expansion.

POSTWAR TRADE: Discuss Imports

With America destined to become the world's No. 1 money lender, the amount paid back will largely depend upon the country's future import volume, Edward E. Brown, prominent midwest banker and a U. S. delegate to the Bretton Woods international monetary conference, told the Investment Bankers convention in Chicago.

Declaring that the U. S. suffered from the delusion that an export balance was always preferable in international trade, Brown said that while the country was a debtor nation it was advisable that we sell more goods abroad than we bought to accumulate exchange for repaying loans. Under impending conditions, however, failure of the U. S. to buy more than it will sell will complicate other nations' servicing of their debts to us.

The convention also heard Redvers Opie, counsellor and economic advisor to the British embassy in Washington, D. C., aver that Britain's goal of increasing its foreign trade by 30 per cent in the postwar period depended upon a general trade revival throughout the world. Britain's present financial embarrassments, Opie said, result from the fact that, as a major exporting nation, consumption of materials for war purposes and shipping scarcities left the country with little to ship abroad in repayment.

PEARL HARBOR: Kept Top Secret

Because of a desire to keep secret the U. S. breaking of the Japanese code, the intercepted messages revealing Jap political and military moves were belatedly only to nine top officials. Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, former head of army intelligence, told the congressional committee investigating Pearl Harbor.

Along with President Roosevelt, others possessing knowledge of the decoded messages included Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of State Hull, Lt. Gen. L. T. Gerow, head of the war plans division, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations, Col. R. S. Bratton of the army intelligence staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, and Miles.

Though Maj. Gen. Walter Short and Rear Adm. Husband Kimmel were not apprized of the breaking of the code, Miles said, they were kept informed of the course of events. However, with officials anticipating an attack in the far east, Short and Kimmel were advised to take only such action as they deemed necessary at Pearl Harbor and guard against sabotage.

When asked what significance was attached to a decoded Jap message of Sept. 24, 1941, asking espionage agents in Hawaii to advise Tokyo of the disposition of the American fleet in Pearl Harbor, Miles replied: "Taken alone, it looks exactly like what we know now it was—a plan for bombing Pearl Harbor. But unless we look on it with hindsight, it was only one of a great number of Jap messages seeking information on our warships. It was perfectly normal for them to be doing so."

SCHOOL LIGHTING: Best Pays

In a detailed report to civic leaders on lighting and seeing conditions, the Miami, Fla., Kiwanis club declared the progress of pupils in a properly lighted room in Tuscomb, Ala., showed two-thirds less failure over a test period of two years.

At Lebanon, Pa., a 28 per cent improvement was shown, and at Cambridge, Mass., the failure ratio in the fifth grade was one to three in favor of better lighting.

Loses Half of House

When the town of Silver Lake, Minn., decided to widen Center street, the village council attempted to induce Mrs. Clara Caspryk, 44, to move her five-room residence, standing 16 feet into the area required for the expansion.

Not only did Mrs. Caspryk refuse a proposition for the town to move the building back and pay her $200, Mayor Frank Boudes said, but she also ignored a court order to relocate the structure, leading to the judge's permission for the village to remove that part of the property blocking the improvement. After a crew of carpenters virtually sawed the building in half, Mrs. Caspryk was left with only one bedroom intact, the living room having been completely shorn and the kitchen, dining room and an upstairs bedroom bisected. Because she had no other place to live, Mrs. Caspryk, who is crippled by arthritis, returned to make her home in the one remaining bedroom after a brief stay with her brother-in-law.

Find Novel Uses for Radio Surplus

Laboratory technicians who are working with the Reconstruction Finance corporation in developing methods of disposing of three to five billion dollars worth of new and used radio and electronics equipment no longer needed by the armed forces have found that antenna tube sections can be cut into small sizes and converted into toy whistles for exuberant youngsters.

Toy whistles are only one of a number of adaptations that have been worked out by RFC and industry technicians in an effort to develop peacetime markets for the vast quantities of radio and electronics equipment and components that are deemed of no further use to the military services.

Other conversion possibilities include small flag pole holders for use in decorating homes on holiday occasions, adapted from antenna mounting brackets; curtain or portieres rods, from ground rods and aids for such fanciful occupations as hunting buried treasures from hand-carried mine detectors.

Besides the many items that will perform peacetime tasks entirely unrelated to their wartime uses, much of the equipment, such as the mobile communications units, walkie-talkies, field telephone sets and tank and plane inter-phone systems will be available for civilian or commercial use, with little or no change. Fire and police departments, railroads, taxi-cab companies, transit organizations, amateur radio operators, farmers, housewives and many other groups and individuals will be provided with ready peacetime uses for the communications materials that figured so prominently in the victories in the European and Pacific theaters.

WAR CRIMES:
Pleads Innocence

First major axis personage to be brought to trial for war crimes, Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, erstwhile "Tiger of Malaya" and Jap commander in the Philippines, flatly denied charges of countenancing rape, pillage and murder and then rested his case.

As the Allied military tribunal pondered the case, Yamashita considered appeal to the U. S. Supreme court in case of conviction on grounds of illegality of the proceedings. Previously the Philippine Supreme court had refused a similar protest with the demand the defendant be freed for trial before civil authorities.

In taking the Gen. Yamashita stand to deny charges against him, the squat, browned Jap general declared he ordered none of the atrocities related by scores of witnesses or contained in hearsay evidence admitted by the court. To the accusation that he had planned the extermination of the Filipinos, Yamashita declared that common sense indicated the impracticability of wiping out nearly 13 million people by slaughter.

The case against Yamashita was complicated by the apparent division of command in Japanese ground, naval and air forces in the Philippines. While as ground commander Yamashita said he had ordered the withdrawal of his troops from Manila for warfare in the mountains, Nipponese naval detachments remained within the capital for the fighting which heavily damaged the city and exposed civilians to danger.

Meanwhile, the trial of 26 top Nazis proceeded apace in Nuremberg, with the United States prosecutors drawing from voluminous evidence to prove the charges of German conspiracy for aggressive warfare.

Citing a statement of Diplomatist Franz Von Papen that southeastern Europe was Germany's hinterland and must be brought within the political framework of the Reich, U. S. Prosecutor Sidney Alderman quoted documents to show that Hitler had delegated Von Papen to develop a program of Nazi infiltration into the Austrian government to take it over after the aborted putsch of 1934.

GERMANY: Review Rule

With French obstruction to Allied plans for a central administration for Germany resulting in the economic breskup of the Reich and difficulties for a restoration of normalcy, the U. S. was asked to study the advisability of revising the Potsdam declaration pledging this country to its present course.

In urging a re-examination of U. S. occupation policies, Byron Price, former director of the office of censorship who undertook a special mission to Europe for President Truman, declared that the German people were nursing old and new hatreds with increasing bitterness as their sufferings increased and disposing of themselves to whatever new leadership desperation may produce.

With German agriculture and industry seriously impaired during the closing stages of the war, Price said the U. S. must also decide whether to deliver foodstuffs to the country to prevent starvation and epidemics this winter and in this manner help remove some causes for unrest.

OPA Aims to 'Hold That Line' as Building Costs Threaten to Zoom

By AL JEDLICKA and WALTER SHEAD

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

WITH a huge postwar building and realty boom in the offing, sentiment in the nation's capital favors both government and industry working hand in hand to combat the dangers of an inflationary spiral resulting from the tremendous pent-up demand for housing.

Although aggravated since the end of the war by the return of millions of veterans, the housing situation has long been an acute problem. Its seriousness first attracted attention during the war, when influxes of people to war production centers overtaxed building capacity. New construction was limited by various shortages. Now that a resumption of building has been permitted, the question is largely one of holding prices within bounds in the face of expected demand.

Already empowered to regulate costs of materials and services, the Office of Price Administration has sought the additional authority to control the sales price of finished homes and used buildings. Unless granted such permission, the agency argues, its check over the industry would be imperfect, and untrammelled speculation would undo the benefits obtained by the other regulations.

Bitterly resisting OPA recommendations, private builders asserted that further controls over the industry would result in a diminution of prospective construction, while the problem is one of stimulating more. Rather, the industry argued, OPA and other government agencies should concentrate upon the increase of supplies and manpower to provide a basis for all-out construction.

In the midst of the controversy, Reconversion Director Snyder stepped in to announce that the administration favored a program embracing present government regulation of materials and services, with no supervision over prices of finished homes and used buildings unless proven needed.

Burden of Mortgages.

In arguing for authority over pricing of final sales, OPA pointed to World War I records, which not only showed a decrease in construction as costs rose, but also emphasized the serious mortgage problems later growing from the original over-valuation of homes.

According to OPA figures, building material prices showed a 218 per cent increase from 1914 to 1920, with more than half of the rise occurring after the armistice. At the same time, total construction costs mounted 189 per cent from 1913 to 1920, with three-quarters of the boost coming after the end of hostilities.

As a result of the inflationary spiral, OPA said, actual home construction topped from the peak figure of 465,000 units in 1919 to 247,000 a year later. While prices automatically fell with the drop in building activity, they remained relatively high, with another recession setting in around 1928.

Millions of veterans, like Sgt Walter Oshurn of Detroit, who was wounded in Normandy, want homes of their own. Most of them have considerable savings, and are ready to build if prices are within reason.

Against this record of World War I, OPA cited the accomplishments during the present conflict, when government control of material costs held price increases to 31 per cent from August, 1939. Of this total, a 6.7 per cent rise occurred after issuance of the famous "hold-the-line" order of May, 1943.

Meanwhile, the increase in construction costs totalled only 24 per cent since August, 1939, with only a limited amount of building done to accommodate necessary needs.

Huge Demand, Short Supplies.

In contemplating the need for control over sales prices of finished homes and used buildings, OPA drew the picture of a huge back-log of construction and a protracted period of short supplies in the face of tremendous demand.

In all, the nation has a need for over eight million new homes, OPA figures, as a result of the increase in families since 1940, servicemen marriages, undoubling in crowded quarters, the number of housing units now rated as sub-standard.

Despite the need and the comparative prosperity of the people, however, a recent survey by the architectural forum indicated that 37 per cent of the persons interviewed would postpone building if prices of finished homes should soar above $1,000 over present prices. Another 12 per cent had not decided what course they would take.

Of the total of 51 per cent that determined to build regardless of a $1,000 increase in costs, most revealed that they would raise more money, but a sizable percentage declared their intention to purchase a cheaper structure. Most sales would be under $7,000.

In analyzing the results of the survey, OPA asserted that the indicated deferral of building plans in the event of a $1,000 increase in costs would result in a loss of employment to more than 600,000 workers, thereby reducing demand for goods which they themselves could be counted upon to purchase.

Now that private industry will play an important part in the fight to hold sales prices of finished and used homes to reasonable levels, OPA will concentrate on the enforcement of dollars and cents ceilings for materials and services going into structures. The flat prices will in attacking the OPA proposal to slap controls over the prices of new structures, the National Association of Home Builders, spearheading private industry, declared that the only way to prevent a serious inflation was by increasing the supply to meet the tremendous demand.

"Although swamped with applications for new houses," Joseph E. Merriam, president of the association said, "the home builders cannot complete the large new developments which are needed to ease

In the 1913 to 1920 inflationary period, labor costs did not rise as much as building material prices. The total cost of construction, however, increased substantially during and after the war. The rise between 1913 and 1918 accounted for 40 per cent of the total inflation. In the two years between the end of the war in November of 1918 and December, 1920, prices went up rapidly, accounting for 60 per cent of the inflation.

cover millwork, lumber, brick and tile, plywood, screens and windows, roofing, siding, insulation, heating equipment, hardware, soil pipe, plumbing supplies, etc.

In addition, services controlled will include painting and paper hanging, renewing of roofs, plumbing installation and other work adapted to supervision.

the housing shortage until they have assurance from the government that manufacturers of badly needed materials and equipment will be aided in getting into full production immediately.

'Handicaps and Restraints.'

"In addition," Merriam continued, "it is imperative that the government announce that it will not expand home building controls. As matters now stand, with top agencies in sharp disagreement, builders do not know what handicaps and restraints they will face if they attempt to expand operations to meet the pressing need."

At the same time, Frank W. Cortright, executive vice president of the association, set out the organization's six-point program for speeding construction and counteracting inflationary tendencies:

1. Continue present price controls on building materials for only so long as is necessary. As rapidly as an item is found to be in ample supply, it should be removed from price control.

2. Inaugurate an active program by the Civilian Production agency, successor to the War Production board, to control the inventory of short items in order to eliminate the possibility of hoarding.

3. Start an active co-ordinated campaign by government agencies to increase the supply of scarce building materials, and, if necessary, grant price and wage increases to break bottlenecks.

4. Builders, realtors and financing institutions will conduct a co-operative program to maintain non-inflationary prices of homes.

5. All segments of the home construction industry will formulate a co-operative program to rapidly increase the supply of homes in all classes.

6. The Veterans' administration, the United States Employment service and other governmental agencies should make immediate provision for the channelling of vets and experienced workers into the construction field.

In the matter of pricing of used homes, close supervision by FHA and private financial institutions will be relied upon to keep costs within reasonable bounds in the absence of ceiling regulations.

Few Old Buildings Sold.

Realty activity has been lively since 1939 in the face of the housing shortage, but inability of property owners to find new quarters has served to decrease the supply of old buildings. Even so, 84 per cent of the localities reporting to the National Association of Real Estate boards revealed price increases, averaging 12 1/2 per cent.

Economists have calculated that normally prices of single-family homes have approximated 100 times the monthly rental of purchasers. In July of this year, however, statistics showed that in Denver, Colo., costs of buildings were 95 per cent over this ratio; in Cleveland, Ohio, 63 per cent over; in San Francisco, Calif., 59 per cent; in Chicago, Ill., 47 per cent; in Atlanta, Ga., and New York City, 38 per cent, and in Dallas, Texas, 34 per cent.

With property owners now able to move more freely, and demand for housing exceeding new construction at the start, the turnover of used homes may become greater in the immediate future. To check an inflationary spiral then, finance institutions will have to be careful in appraising the real value of property to prevent burdensome mortgage payments or serious losses in future years.

Having indicated its preference for private regulation of the real estate market, the administration will provide ample opportunity for a real examination of its practicable processes in a period of real national emergency. The experiment will be interesting to follow.

After the last war building costs were entirely uncontrolled. Anyone could charge whatever he wanted for. As a result, costs leaped unchecked. Soon the buying public became alarmed and quit buying homes, late in 1920. Then building costs turned down, until in 1923, they were only 12 per cent above the early 1918 level. Contracts for building mounted quickly. A vigorous boom developed, lasting until 1928.

Row on row of pretty little cottages will be built, provided building costs are kept at levels that can be reached by the majority of prospective purchasers.

Bishop Brady Is Sponsor For Canned Food Drive

A special canned foods collection for starving populations in foreign lands is being held this week by the Catholic churches in New Hampshire. All local citizens have been asked to participate in the drive which is seeking to bring relief to sufferers in war-torn countries.

The pastor at the local church announced the campaign at all Masses last Sunday and said that together with committees he would sort and pack the cans denated during the week so that the foods might reach people in Europe and the Far East as rapidly as possible.

New Hampshire's Catholic Bishop, Most Rev. Matthew F. Brady, who is sponsoring the drive, has said that the food emergency now experienced in both conquered and liberated countries is extremely great with death, disease taking a high toll among the populations of many countries.

Suggested food donations include evaporated milk infant foods, canned vegetables and fruits.

These may be sent or brought to the nearest Catholic church.

Photos That Paid

Many amateur and professional photographs have earned sizable sums through the sale of prints to publications over a period of years, says Collier's. The picture of the shocked passengers on the deck of the Vestris, taken a few minutes before they were rescued from the sinking Atlantic liner in 1923, made at least $3,000; snapshots of the Lindbergh plane, as it capsized and threw its occupant into the Yangtze river in 1931, sold outright for $9,000.

The famous photograph of "The Laughing Cat," snapped near St. Louis in 1923, earned $13,000; and the "bird's-eye view" of San Francisco, made shortly after its great fire in 1906 with a camera elevated 600 feet by kites, produced a profit of $15,000.

Memorial of Destruction

Because Saint-Lo is the most completely destroyed town in France, the government may leave it untouched as a memorial to this war as it did Douaumont after the First World war.

IT SEEMS the report that Harpo Marx would speak in "Adventures in Casablanca" was false. According to late information, David L. Loew, who's producing the picture, has been offering Harpo more money, and then still more, to say just one word. But Harpo feels that the reputation he's built up by remaining silent would be ruined if he gave in. The price finally reached $50,000 (still according to the press agent's story) for one six-letter word, or $9,166.67 per letter. The word? "Murder."

Twentieth Century-Fox has the material for quite a picture in the autobiography of Sol Hurok, which they bought recently. Mr. Hurok as one of our foremost concert managers has known scores of famous people; it should be easy to dramatize many of the incidents he tells. Chaliapin, Pavlova, Isadora Duncan—there'll probably be the usual to-do in Hollywood about who'll portray them.

It's good news that the "Harvest of Stars" radio show is all set for next summer. Raymond Masey continues as narrator, and Howard Barlow as conductor. The high standard of guest stars will be maintained; that means they'll be the best obtainable.

William S. Paley, president of CBS, was awarded the Legion of Merit by Brig. Gen. Robert McClure. He supervised radio broadcasting activities in North Africa and Italy then became chief of radio at supreme headquarters in London, and was transferred from OWI to the army last March as deputy chief, psychological warfare division and information control division.

Leo Pape, the author of the comic strip, "Little Benny," has been engaged by Walt Disney to work on a story. Carl Capper's writing one for Disney that unites four American folklore tales, and Aldous Huxley is preparing a Disney "Alice in Wonderland."

Harry Conover's debut as a movie actor in Republic's forthcoming super-musical, "Conover Girl," is a case of the master following his pupils, his model agency has produced a number of girls who've gone on to movie careers, including Jins Falkenberg, Georgia Carroll and Anita Colby. During their model training he used to give them instructions; now they're ready to turn the tables on him.

ODDS AND ENDS—Jenn Acker, first wife of Rudolph Valentino, has been staged by RKO for a big role in "Lady Luck." . . . Tamsin McCarthy, featured in the corps of shakers in "Suspense," is the girl who taught the Dionne quintuplets how to skate. . . . Fibber McGee and Molly still lead the Hooperoating for evening radio shows. . . . Ginny Simms is going Mohammed and hotter when it comes to mountains; the entire cast is being shooed off a small mountain so that the home she and her husband are building can stand there. . . .

Play Soccer in 55 Lands;
National Sport of Russians

Prior to the 20th century, soccer was virtually confined to England where it originated and has been played for more than 900 years, says Collier's. But in the past four decades, the game has spread to 55 countries and become, in several of them, almost as popular as it is in England.

For example, soccer is today the national sport of Russia where some 200,000 teams are in league competition.

What do you see in the woods?

Remember the old saying about the man who "couldn't see the forest for the trees"? Lots of people are like that. All they see is trees. Others look at the forest and see it filled with books, magazines, newspapers. They see the raw materials of many great industries which depend on pulpwood, such as rayon and plastics. They see cartons and boxes, and many other products manufactured from pulpwood. They see jobs and wealth. Security for the workers and prosperity for the entire community. And if this forest wealth is properly harvested, it will increase in value in the years to come. Let's take another look at our woods. Let's look at the trees and see the opportunities that lie within.

SNAPPY FACTS

about RUBBER

A synthetic rubber developed entirely from petroleum gases is now being used in the manufacture of truck-tire inner tubes. Called Butyl, the new synthetic provides an extra margin of safety against puncture, holds air much longer.

Since Pearl Harbor, the United States has produced as much synthetic rubber as the entire world's supply of natural rubber for the 19 years from 1900 through 1918.

The rubber industry's pre-war capacity of 65,000,000 tires a year has been increased to more than 112,000,000 civilian tires annually.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and retard the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be sagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people in every country over. Ask your neighbor!

EPIPHANY TIME OF GIFT-GIVING

'My Daily Prayer This Year' Threshold of a New Year.

Epiphany being the time of gift-giving in many lands, presents are associated with the Wise Men and their gift-bearing satellites.

According to Spanish legend, the Wise Men pass through Spain each year on Epiphany Eve as they journey to Bethlehem to pay homage to the Christ Child. Children, envisioning the procession of the Magi wending its way across the horizon—the gem-set crowns and blazing torches melting with the sunset—place their shoes on window sills and balconies before going to bed. The shoes are filled with hay for the Wise Men's horses; on Epiphany morning, the hay is gone and toys and sweetmeats overflow such receptacles.

Befana was cleaning house when the Wise Men stopped to inquire how near they were to Bethlehem; Befana knew nothing about Bethlehem, nor had she heard of the Holy Infant whom the Magi were seeking; so she finished her sweeping and went to bed. But Befana could not sleep; the regal cortege which had passed her door, the bright Star which gleamed in the sky, and her own premonitions haunted her; so, Befana started for Bethlehem at midnight on Epiphany Eve.

Alas, the magic hour had passed and, although Befana has wandered ever since, she has never found her way to Bethlehem.

That is why La Befana brings toys and confections to Italian children on Epiphany Eve; and Russian Babouska holds a candle to the face of each sleeping child while she slips a present under his pillow—hoping that some day she will find the Babe of Bethlehem.

Foreign Christmas

Various foreign countries contribute many strange Christmas customs. In Norway there is a myth that the spruce grew from the bloodsoaked ground where two lovers died. The lights symbolize their love, faith and hope. At Saint Marks in Naples, the dogs are taken to church on Christmas morning. There they wait patiently until their masters leave.

Russia holds that Mary is omnipotent and uses a scene with her rather than the Christ Child.

The French plant grain in saucers by which they may foretell the year's crops. Later, these are used for table decorations. Their greens are fashioned into heaps with painted eggshells, fruits and nuts placed intermittently for decoration. So dear to Scandinavian antiquity is mistletoe that if enemies met by chance beneath it in the forest, they laid down their arms with a truce until the next day. From this may have come the custom of hanging the sprig over the door, entering which was a pledge of peace and friendship to be sealed with a kiss.

Mrs. Norma Snow Assails Council For $93 Charge

Because the City of Rochester declined to pay a bill for $93 for repairs to a tree in front of her home at 189 North Main street, Mrs. Norma C. Snow, widow of Associate Justice Leslie P. Snow of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, wrote a letter to Mayor C. Wesley Lyons expressing her surprise. It is said that last September Mrs. Snow had tree surgeons make repairs to the tree which is on city property and then asked the city to pay for it.

Mrs. Snow said in her letter, which was read to the City Council, that the least the council should have done was to make some contribution that would have shown their gratitude for one who was interested in saving trees which are an asset to the city. "As I have always endeavored to beautify rather than have an eye sore spot like Strafford square and some other places, too, I am somewhat grieved," Mrs. Snow wrote. "Strafford square was made attractive wholly without aid from the city and there are other projects which have been brought about through my efforts, free of expense to the city."

"If your committee would consider saving our leaves, instead of hauling them to the dump and burning them they would earn the gratitude of the inhabitants. I have told them yearly where they might dump them, free of expense, save time, labor and gas and have some soil with which to beautify our parks. Can you tell me why such waste?"

Mrs. Snow enclosed two clippings from a Boston paper which had printed an editorial "Virgin Soil." One was from C. Russell Mason secretary treasurer of the Massachusetts Audubon society, endorsing the editorial and the other was from Norman B. Beese of Belmont, Mass., who said for six years he had a compost pit, made up of leaves and grass clipping, back of his garage and that some of the neighbors who did not have a compost pit had contributed their clippings of grass, etc., and had been rewarded with presents of fine lettuce and tomatoes that were the results of good compost fed to soil. "This year we picked 19 quarts of cultivated blueberries—the big kind—from a dozen bushes; all compost fed."

The council did not take any action on Mrs. Snow's suggestion regarding the leaves.

Marshal Redden Says City Needs Youth Center

Expressing his appreciation to the members of the City Council for his election as head of the Police Department, City Marshal Thomas K. Redden in a statement accompanying the report of the activities of his departments, assured the council that the Police Department will do its utmost to cooperate in all matters to further the protection and welfare of the people of Rochester.

"At the present time and for the last few months we have been somewhat handicapped by a shortage of personnel in our department and have not been able to give as much time and attention to some things as we would like to have," his letter stated.

"We are aware that Rochester, like every other city of its size, has a parking problem and it is our duty to help in every way we can to overcome this problem. In this we are asking your cooperation and the cooperation of the people of Rochester in making the enforcement of our parking regulations a pleasant task and not a disagreeable one. In the future it will be absolutely necessary to rigidly enforce our one-hour parking law."

"During recent months we have had numerous complaints of speeding in the outlying and residential sections of our city. We have asked for, and have been assured of, the cooperation of the State Police in the matter. As soon as we have our full quota of men there will be a man assigned to a road patrol whose responsibility it will be to see that the motor vehicle laws are complied with.

"One other problem that concerns all of us is that of our boys and girls who make up that group known as juvenile delinquents. We know it is not our duty to rear children but we are very much aware that a large percentage of the complaints that are brought to us, many of which it is necessary to bring to our courts are those of minor children. At present Rochester has no facilities where these children can employ their idle time and where they might be taught the fundamental ideas of being good citizens.

"It is my earnest hope that some time, in the not too distant future, we can help guide and make good citizens of these children who are not given an opportunity elsewhere. Delinquency has been a topic of concern and a topic that has been discussed in every section of our country. If we can see our way to giving this problem some financial as well as moral support we will have gone a long way toward making a better Rochester."

Arrests for the month totalled 28, Marshal Redden reported. Other activities of the department included answering 82 complaints issuing 14 tags for defective motor vehicle equipment, investigating 13 accidents, aiding other departments four times, killing animals and checking buildings at night, nine of which were found unlocked.

Parking Charge $1 To $25 After 1st Offense Says Council

New regulations governing parking violations which were passed by the city council under suspension of the rules will be administered by the Police Department.

Marshal Thomas K. Redden appeared before the council and urged the adoption of the "Portland Plan," which has also been tried out successfully in nearby Sanford, Me. For the first offense a motorist brings his tag to the police station and pays 50 cents. A fine of $1 for a second offense is also payable at the police station and a third offense results in the offender facing court.

Following some discussion the council voted that for the first offense the person be given a courtesy warning. A second offense will be a fine of $1 and a third offense can result in a fine up to $25 to be determined by the judge of the municipal court, if the offense occurs within a calendar year. At the first of each year the motorist commences with a clean slate.

CAPITAL, MANAGEMENT, LABOR AND PUBLIC

ON VARIOUS OCCASIONS I have stressed the need of a working partnership between the three elements that are essential to production. Those three are capital, management and labor. To those three there should be added a silent partner that must, at all times, receive consideration. That silent partner is the general public, the purchaser of the commodities that are produced.

To make such a production partnership work effectively no one or more of its essential elements can attempt to withhold information that should be shared by all partners. Should management attempt to withhold information from capital, the support of capital would stop. There would be no available funds for expansion, or for bridging those stop-gaps that are encountered at intervals. What is true of management and capital is also true of management and labor and capital and labor. Much the same thing is true of that silent partner, the general public. Unless production has the confidence of that silent partner, production will fall in achieving full accomplishment.

The tendency of the past has been to deny one or more of the partners of production a full knowledge of its operations. That method has resulted in strife and eventual disaster. It has meant strikes and lock-outs. It has resulted in a lack of financial support when such support was needed. It has produced a lack of patronage from that silent partner, without which production cannot succeed.

It is the known truth of this production partnership that must work out the details of its operation. Each of them must lay its cards face up on the table; each of the three must have no secrets from the other two, or from that silent partner, the public. When production operates on a known and equitable basis for all of its four partners America will be in a position to achieve to the full its manifest destiny.

Unity of Action Must Be Gained

This is not proposing socialism of any type. It is proposing an honest course through which to avoid the state socialism toward which we are drifting. Those who would make of us a state socialistic nation use the ceaseless strife between the elements involved in production as a foundation on which to build their air castles.

It is proposing a practical basis on which the production elements should get together, and through honesty of purpose, honesty with each other, can make American production what it should, and can, be in a badly demoralized world. With an honest affiliation between the partners of production, based on an honest exchange of information, and with each assuming its share of responsibility, there would be no threat of government operation, and less, if any, need for government regulation.

No one of the partners of production wants state socialism, and the way to avoid it is honesty in dealings between themselves. Cover-up methods will not achieve the needed confidence. Put the cards on the table.

THERE WAS NEVER A YIP from any of those individuals who are promoting state socialism for America, urging a free exchange of news between the totalitarian countries of Europe, especially Russia, and the United States. For the American people to have day by day an uncensored account of what is happening in Russia would not fit in with their hopes for state socialism in this country. They prefer that we have only the story of Russia as the Communists want that story told. We should have the other side before deciding to jump into the fire.

FOR CENTURIES France has been the spoiled child of Europe. Her tantrums have provoked many of the continental wars. Again she is being cantankerous, and refuses to play the game with the other Allies in the administration of Germany unless she is awarded the Saar and the Rhineland now, instead of awaiting the peace conference. She needs another spanking.

SOME FOREIGN NATIONS have yet to learn that it takes congressional action to make an American promise binding.

Games and Dolls Hold First Spot in Santa's Toyland

Dolls are a big favorite.

The celebration of V-J Day didn't come soon enough to put Santa Claus' toyland schedule to a peacetime basis. Although he will carry more than a $200,000,000 pack of playthings this Christmas, less than 8 per cent of the toys under Yuletide trees will be of metal and most of these will be the simplest types of stamped-out metal.

There will be only a token showing of wheel toys, electric trains and mechanical toys of metal, a survey of toyland supplies indicates, but better quality lines of wood and cardboard playthings are assured. Rubber toys are not expected to appear in any volume and plastic items will be limited to the same small quantities as last year due to material shortages.

The brightest spot on toyland is the doll parade and the parlor game sector where there are reported to be good supplies of many old favorites like Camelot and Monopoly that children and parents can enjoy together, although cardboard and dye-cut limitations have made new items scarce. Classic card game favorites like Rook, Pit and Crossword Lexicon have been produced in large volume, as they require a minimum of cardboard. Bonanza, combining the technique of Michigan and Rummy, is another favorite that provides fun for all the family. Escape-type games that are easy to learn predominate.

Percentage
A traveler dropped into a restaurant and ordered two eggs. The waitress brought him four. "But I only ordered two," said the man.
"I know," was the waitress' explanation, "but half the eggs are bad."

Yeh, Ha, Ha
A tough officer strode into the barracks. "All right, you lazy asses, fall out on the double!" he yelled.
The sailors grabbed their hats and scrambled for the door—that is, all but one lad who calmly continued to lie on his sack and read his magazine.
"Well?" the officer roared at him.
"Well," replied the calm one. "There sure were a lot of them, weren't there?"

Worth More
He was a bore, and heartily disliked. Rushing into the club secretary's room and fuming with rage, he shouted, "I've just been offered $50 to resign. What shall I do?"
The secretary was quite calm and replied: "Hold on for a bit. You'll probably get a better offer."

Rabbit's Rear Vision

You can't creep up on a rabbit without him seeing you, for the animal can watch happenings behind as well as in front. Overlapping fields of vision enable rabbits to spot an enemy approaching from the rear without moving their heads.

It's the "CENTER BITE" of
that helps You Do
MORE WORK

ONLY one tractor tire has the patented "Center Bite" tread design . . . that's the Firestone Ground Grip. This "Center Bite" will give your tractor up to 16% more pull at the drawbar. That's because the triple-braced bars cross at the very heart of the traction zone where the center of your load falls. And it doesn't catch trash and clog up like open-center treads.

But the extra pull of a "Center Bite" Ground Grip tire is not its only advantage. It has a 40% longer tread life and the cord body is 14% stronger. That is why more farmers use Firestone Ground Grips than any other make.

You will find that you can save time, money and do a better job of farming with Firestone Ground Grips . . . the only tires with the "Center Bite."

*Area in white shows the "Center Bite" traction zone; not found in other tires because of Firestone's exclusive patent rights.

AMERICAN HEROES

by JULIAN OLLENDORFF

POSTHUMOUSLY a Silver Star was awarded to Pvt. Willis V. McFarland, St. Louis, Mo. When attempting to establish a beachhead on the Rapido River, Italy, Pvt. McFarland's unit was halted by enemy artillery fire. Dropping to the ground, he crawled over the shell-blasted shore to cut barbed wire, discharging his automatic rifle as he went. Thus he advanced through barbed wire entanglements until severely wounded. He gave his life fighting to free Italy, and the purchase of War Bonds will help continue that fight until all of the world is liberated from the Axis yoke.

AMERICAN HEROES

by JULIAN OLLENDORFF

WHILE reconnoitering at night on the western front, Sergt. Arthur G. Volonte, New York City, stumbled into a German patrol consisting of an officer and seven men. Sergt. Volonte told the officer that they were surrounded and the Nazis followed him back to the American commander. The sergeant has been awarded a Silver Star for gallantry. Americans buy War Bonds to help men like that to win this war.
